MICHELSON HALL
CLEMSON

To capture every memory of the Brigade of Midshipmen from the past year in a single journal would be impossible. With the diversity of people who comprise the Brigade, and the variety of activities each undertakes, even a single day could not be covered in one book.

The Lucky Bag makes no attempt to recall everything which happened this year. Instead it contains a collection of highlights that made this year memorable. In the following pages you will see everything from the Army/Navy football game to lab classes in Rickover; from annual trips to Panama City to daily trips to King Hall; from Induction Day to Graduation Day.

> “Discipline is willing obedience to attain the greates good by the greatest number. It means laying aside, for the time being, of ordinary everyday go-as-you-please and do-what-you-like. It means one for all and all for one - teamwork. It means a machine - not of inert metal, but one of living men - an integrated human machine in which each does his part and contributes his full share.”
> \- Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King

"Sign on, young man, and sail with me. The stature of our homeland is no more than the measure of ourselves. Our job is to keep her free. Our will is to keep the torch of freedom burning for all. To this solemn purpose we call on the young, the brave, and the strong, and the free. Heed my call. Come to the sea. Come sail with me."

Year in Review

Plebe Year

Plebe year. For many midshipmen, this was their first time away from home. As the year wore on, new friends were made and new events were experienced.

'95 went through the usual routine of come-arounds, dinings-in, and Hundred's Night (notice that Reuben already had his six-striper bars on). Our plebe year also saw the first-ever capture of the Army mules, and we went on to beat Army in football that year.

As Herndon came and went, '95 moved up the ladder to assume their responsibilities as youngsters, which included telling tall tales beginning with, "When I was a plebe..."

NAVY

Youngster Year

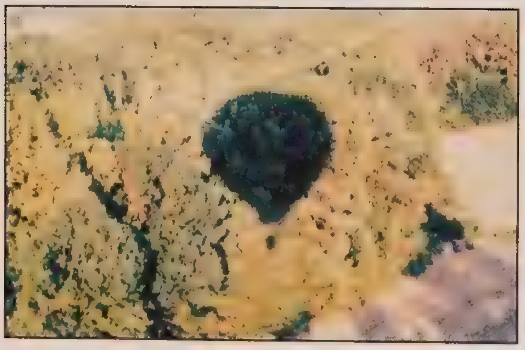
After plebe year came that short-lived time of being a midshipman with minimum responsibility: youngster year. The new plebes were trained, the endurance limits of a midshipman in the rack were tested, and the consistency of Quantico mud became a pertinent topic.

In between sports and extracurriculars, academics gradually began to get worse. Majors had been picked, and some were quickly switched. Well, at least we could go outside the five mile limit, put on your civvies, and pretend to be a normal college student for a while and relieve the stress. As we reached the half-way point at USNA, things started to look brighter as we prepared for a summer with more options than YP's and Quantico.

2/c Year

Second-Class year started underway; most midshipmen participated in grey-hull cruises over the summer, while others attended warfare elective schools.

The academic year began with the traditional "Two-for-Seven" tailgater, and we beat Air Force and survived EE to make it to our ring dance. '95 made efforts to go all out for the big occasion: one couple took a hot-air balloon ride, while a group of mids bought live lobsters and cooked them for their dates.



1/c Year

First class year finally arrived. Life in the Hall continued as usual; moving in actually seems easy on the fourth try, even though we showed up with a lot more than we had when we were plebes. For the last three years, everyone told us that it would go quickly. As the countdown until graduation gets into the single digits, I'm starting to believe it does seem to have gone quickly. Second semester began, Service Assignment came and went, and "firstie-itis" set in. There were design projects and papers to finish... later. As our time by the Bay wrapped up, nobody seemed to care much about homework anymore; catching up with friends before we left seemed a lot more important.

First-class Cruise

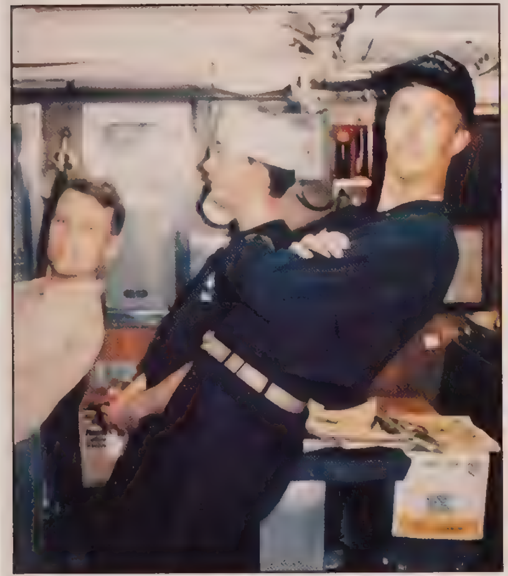
A midshipman's last summer at the academy is the one with the most choices. Options include training with the surface warfare community, the Marine Corps, the aviation community, or any one of several special schools, such as Airborne, SERE, or mini-BUDS. Even aviators and Marines took advantage of the oppotunity to be a POW for a few weeks, while some SWOrriors sought an aviation cruise just for fun.

There are many challenges and learning opportunities over first-class cruise. Of course, a lot of work didn't mean that none of us found any time to have fun, no matter where we were training for the summer. From SCUBA school to Boomer cruises, every experience was more fun than life at Mother B.

2/c Summer

Second-class summer was the first exposure to the Fleet for many midshipmen. The memories of their first cruise, good or bad, will remain with mids throughout their career in the Navy.

In addition to cruise, all mids participated in PROTRAMID, two weeks learning about aviation and submarines. We got the opportunity to fly in trainers and spend a day on a submarine, while enjoying the towns of Pensacola and King's Bay.



3/c Summer

Third-class cruise is the beginning of a midshipman's hands-on indoctrination into the Navy. For the first time, they man a YP or sloop and learn to con and navigate. Third class also have the chance to interact with the Marines for four weeks in Quantico, Virginia, during MLT. Other mids may participate in Airborne school during the summer.

These opportunities lay some of the basic foundations for a midshipman's professional development. Of course, it also gives us the chance to experiment with slingshots and grilling onboard the YPs, or to sail to Caribbean ports with CSTS. Despite the hard work in each of these programs, we all manage to enjoy ourselves along the way.

I-Day

Plebe summer starts with the sudden shock of I-day. As the incoming plebes file into Tecumseh Court, many thoughts go through their minds: memories of home, anticipation of the coming six weeks, nervousness, and excitement towards the new challenges they are about to face.

I-day leaves a lasting impression on every midshipman. It marks the official beginning of our career in the Navy. It marks the last day of being a relatively care-free civilian. And, if it doesn't leave an impression for any other reason, it is often the last clear memory before the blur of Plebe Summer begins.

Plebe Summer

The summer zooms by. New plebes are taught to drill, chop, sail, swim, shoot, wear uniforms, identify insignia, and work as a team. The development of the idea of honor is begun. Slowly, as the six weeks continue, the new class of 1998 is taught to think and act as a team. The civilians and enlisted that entered theAcademy on I-day are learning to become midshipmen.

Plebe Detail

We are often told during plebe summer that the summer is even harder the second time around. Every year, a few midshipmen per company have a chance to find out.

The plebe summer detailers are selected carefully; after all, they hold in their hands the unique opportunity to be the first force to mold the new plebes into midshipmen. During every evolution, from weapons training to drill, the detailers are changing the way the plebes think about themselves and the Academy.

These first six weeks of intensive training will have a significant influence on the plebes as they complete their four years at the Academy, and these four years at the Academy will influence graduates' experience in the Fleet. It is up to the detailers to make sure that this influence is a positive one.

4/c Parents' Weekend

Fourth-class Parents' Weekend is the first chance for the parents to see the remarkable changes their sons and daughters have gone through over the summer. Aside from the obviously short hair, the plebes often stand straighter, talk faster, want to sleep more, and walk much differently than they used to.

Plebe summer is over, and the return of the Brigade is only just looming on the horizon; for the weekend, the plebes are the center of a lot of love and attention from their parents. They show off their skills in drill, sheet posters, and keeping a tuck in their summer whites. With all the changes, the weekend is always too short to take it all in.

Change of Command

This summer, the Naval Academy witnessed change of command ceremonies for both the Superintendent and the Commandant. RADM Thomas Lynch turned over the position of Superintendent to ADM Charles Larson, and CAPT William T. R. Bogle relieved CAPT John B. Padgett as Commandant. The traditional ceremonies took place in Alumni Hall, complete with color guard and rifle detail. ADM Larson became the 55th Superintendent of the Naval Academy, while CAPT Bogle became the 75th Commandant of Midshipmen. Colonel Charles F. Bolden, Jr. oversaw the ceremonies after assuming command in May of 1994.

Classes

The majority of every midshipman's day-to-day life is spent in class. Like everything else here, classes are what you make of them, but often what you get stuck with. Many profs have their own nickname, whether they are known as a "bone" or "hook" prof. Chemistry or EE tend to put fear into the minds of mids, while golf, philosophy, or firstie design projects tend to be viewed differently. Despite our choices for electives, we always travelled to Luce Hall every semester. But no matter how bad NL was, the leadership tests once we graduate will never again be multiple choice.

1/c Parents' Weekend

First-class Parents' Weekend was a chance for the class of '95 to show their parents around the Yard one more time. Unlike Plebe Parents' Weekend, the firsties were confident and comfortable in their now familiar surroundings. Parents were sure to notice the amazing differences between the plebes they left behind after their first parents' weekend and the young adults their children had become.

Forty Year Swim

One of the milestones in every midshipman's academy career is the "Forty Year" swim. Everyone from the "rocks" to the varsity swimmers is required to pass this test of how many of your classmates you can hit, kick, splash, and otherwise attempt to drown in forty minutes. Oh, and you have to swim a certain distance while doing all of that, too. It's designed to test how far you can swim in 40 minutes, but for some it becomes only a matter of staying afloat the whole time.

How can you tell the difference between an Academy Grad and a ROTC officer? The ROTC officer will drown, while the Academy Grad will swim around for 40 minutes before drowning.

March-On and Halftime

One of the biggest impressions by the Brigade on Annapolis is the march-over parade. Even though candy throwing has been outlawed, many Annapolitans still flock to the streets to watch the Brigade march by. In the fall, The route down Stribling Walk, out Gate 2, past St. John's to Navy / Marine Corps Stadium becomes a very familiar sight.

March-On features the National Anthem and a fly-by, and then the mids scurry to their seats to view the game. Half-time entertainment by the Drum and Bugle Corps or Silent Drill Team also add to the Navy football experience.

Beemer

With every home football game, Annapolitans flock to cheer on the brigade as they made their traditional voyage to Navy Marine Corps Mem. Stadium. Although candy throwing has been outlawed the sight still draws large crowds.

Chris

Football

The football season is the highlight much of the first semester. Approximately every other Saturday, the Brigade cheers the football team to (hopefully) another victory. The game, however, is not the only thing to see on Saturday. March Over, flybys, and pushups by the plebes are ageless traditions associated with Navy Football, while catching candy from the upper deck and tailgating after the game make the afternoon even more enjoyable. Cheerleaders and the D&B keep the brigade lively during the game, and even our fighting ships on the field add to the excitement. Even if we don't always win, the whole Navy football experience is a time we'll never forget.

Tailgaters

Every year, the football season provides an opportunity for companies to gather in an informal atmosphere and get to know their company mates better. Often, alumni come to tailgaters to see how their old companies are doing, or just to hang out with the mids.

In addition to company tailgaters, there are also tailgaters for classes and warfare communities. However, any excuse to have a party before or after the game will do.

Adam

Drill

Fall brings out falling leaves, the beginning of classes, and the start of drill. This tradition ties us to the generations of midshipmen who have come before us. Thousands of naval leaders have worn the same uniform, drilled on the same field, and followed the same orders.

Although drill is probably not the Brigade's favorite activity, it does serve a purpose. The tourists and parents are always impressed as we honor distinguished visitors from Admirals to government officials. Maybe when we finish our last "p-rade," we will look back on this tradition somewhat more fondly. But maybe not.

Autumn

As the school year progresses, the summer heat gradually vanishes. Leaves start to turn, the weather cools, and the Brigade settles into its routine of academics and Drill. The tourists and the yard dogs continue to scurry around the yard, but both slowly disappear as Winter nears. With football season in full swing and Thanksgiving and Christmas just ahead, the Academy is generally filled with excitement.

Pep Rallies

Football season provides many great ways to "blow off steam," and pep rallies allow for this release. This year we had a few major pep rallies, the most memorable of course when Reuben stood on the steps and said, "No, no, Brigade, the spontaneous pep rally is tomorrow night."

Whether they were spontaneous or not, the pep rallies filled all of their necessary functions: they created a large mess, they were loud, and they were fun.

The annual football game against the cadets in the blue bus driver suits from Colorado Springs is always a highlight of the season. Despite the fact that the game was held at USAFA this year, spirit was still high here in Annapolis. As always, spie-rigging with the Marines was a popular activity for the braver midshipmen, while the static display provided a hands-on display of Marine Corps equipment.

In Colorado, a small contingent of midshipmen, led by the Cheerleaders and the Drum and Bugle Corps, were present to provide moral support for the football team, while the mids at home enjoyed a three-day weekend. Even though Navy did not beat the Falcons this year, it was still an enjoyable break in the year and a spirited part of the football season.

Dances

The Naval Academy sponsors many dances, or "hops", every year. For these occasions, Dahlgren is transformed into a large dance floor with a stage for the band and local colleges are invited, providing supplemental dancing partners for those unfortunate mids who couldn't find a lacal date to dance with.

Most of these dances are informal, and they are usually held in Dahlgren Hall. This year, however, there was also a swing dance held in Memorial Hall. Although the mandatory Plebe Mixers are gone, many mids still attend, and enjoy, the Academy hops.

Halloween

By the time the end of October rolls around, most of the Brigade is ready for a release. Halloween is a chance to goof off, act like an idiot, dress strangely, don your "Black N" sweater, get free candy from the plebes, and eat dinner in whatever outfit suits you. In addition to all of this, the Brigade also sponsors a haunted house for children ofAnnapolis. By the time everyone gets back to studying, some of the usual tension is gone, and everyone has begun counting the days to Thanksgiving break.

The Yard: Then...

Through the years, the Yard has experienced many significant changes. After a building spurt around 1900, all of the buildings that were on the grounds of Fort Severn were gone except for the guard house. The Severn river was filled in to provide the Academy with more land for athletics and academics. The Yard's most recent additions include Chauvenet, Nimitz, and Alumni Hall.

... and Now

The Yard today is a familiar sight. If we look closely, however, we can see the Yard of yesteryear. The trees have changed. The Chapel is entirely different from what it looked like when it was first built. Some of the buildings, paths, and monuments, however, remain after more than a century. What we cannot see are the spirits of those who have come before us for 150 years.

Arsenic and Old Lace

This fall's Masqueraders production was Aresenic and Old Lace, the story of two little old ladies who, out of feelings of pity, kill lonely old men by poison. The steady operation of murder, followed by burial in the basement by a man who believes himself to be Teddy Roosevelt burying malarial victims in Panama, is interrupted when the ladies' nephew discovers a victim in the window seat. Shortly after, another nephew, who has murdered many people for less humane reasons, appears with a "doctor" friend in an attempt to hide his most recent victim, who also finds his way into the window seat. Add in a slightly crazy group of cops, and you get a hilarious mixture, which was carried off wonderfully by the Masqueraders.

Army Pep Rally

Just as the week before the Army-Navy game is one of the most spirited times of the year, the pep rallies are naturally even louder than usual. The highlight of the Army Week pep rallies is the bonfire and fireworks show at the end of the week. With rally speeches from the Supe, Dant, Brigade Commander, football captain, and football coach, the festivities tend to be a little longer than usual, but all the more spirited. Spirit Skits, cheerleader routines, the bonfire display, and the fireworks show all lend to the atmosphere to "fire-up" the Brigade for the big game against our arch-rivals.

Pregame

Considering the early reveille time, many members of the Brigade staying in the hall simply decide to stay up all night and sleep on the bus. But when the Brigade arrives in Philadelphia for the game, spirit is high. After forming up by companies, the Brigade marches onto the field, complete with the traditional "Beat Army" on the last rank of 36th company.

This year the exchange mids provided a not so traditional "Go Navy": one letter shaved onto each mid's head, and the exchange Woops even lost some tape from their backs and spelled "Be Navy" to the crowd.

As everyone crowded into the stands, things got a bit jammed for awhile. Eventually, however, most mids found seats and the Brigade remained standing for most of the game, anyway.

Mac

Clark

Army-Navy

As the mids settled in the stands this year, cowbells and pompons were passed out. Fully equipped, the mids were ready to make as much noise as possible. The cheerleaders started several cheers (unlike the Cadets, we had more than one cheer), and the rest of the time, the Brigade just made noise. A field goal was the deciding factor for the third straight year, but nobody can say that we had less spirit this year.

Holidays

The holiday season starts at USNA with the Giving from the Heart of the Brigade service in the Chapel. Each year, the Brigade and other members of the Academy family donate hundreds of boxes of food which are distributed to needy families in the area.

After Thanksgiving leave and Army-Navy week, there is only a short time left until the end of the semester and exams. Everyone is looking forward to time at home with friends, and family. Before the Hall begins to get decorated, mids' minds are already starting to wander home.

Adam

Mids in the Hall

From the day we arrived till the day we leave, life in "Mother B' is the centerpiece of many of our memories. The rooms vary from the wood and carpet rooms in sixth wing to the two-man plebe rooms with three people jammed into them due to the seemingly forever construction of 7th wing. The views can be anything from "Goat Court" to a view of the Severn River or the Chesapeake Bay. We spend most of our days in the Hall, sleeping, goofing off, studying, eating, and talking to friends throughout the Brigade. Although the Harbor Queen calls it "that building on your left that looks like a prison," for four years, whether we like it or not, it is Home.

Concerts

For being a relatively small college, the Naval Academy attracts many big names for its concerts. Performances this year included the New York City Opera Company, Mary Chapin Carpenter, the Temptations and the Four Tops, and the Beach Boys. With the chance to be on the stage crew, mids have the opportunity to meet these famous performers. Even though most mids don't help on stage crews, the seats in Alumni Hall are closer to the stage than you're likely to get for that price at any other concert facility. Of course, there are no lawn seats or Mosh Pits, but it's still a great chance to attend big-name concerts.

Winter

Winter this year was rather quiet, to say the least. Having had two "storms of the century" in the last two years, though, the mild winter of 1994-95 was a welcome break. At least we knew what we would have gotten if it had snowed seriously; numerous e-mail messages reminded us what to do and when classes would be in case of snow. Despite several dire warnings on the radio of impending snow, we only had one small snowfall. In spite of missed snowball fights and snowdays, however, it was nice to know that "Stribbling River" would not be appearing this spring.

150 Years

For one hundred and fifty years, the U. S. Naval Academy has been producing officers for the Fleet. With the exception of several years spent in Newport, Rhode Island during of the Civil War, the Academy has always been on the banks of the Severn. As the Academy grew, new buildings sprung up around the Yard, the Severn became narrower as the Yard expanded, and the school's reputation grew nationally.

This year marks the Academy's 150th anniversary. Banners have been put up all over the Yard, and a relay race and big band gala were held to mark the beginning of the anniversary year. While we celebrate, however, we also remember those midshipmen who died prior to graduation. Admiral Larson helped to dedicate a new plaque in Memorial Hall this year "to those we've left behind."

The Yard

The Yard. We see it every day that we are here. Most of those days, we also see tourists walking the paths, listening attentively to the tour guide. What could possibly be interesting about this place?

Someday, perhaps years from now, we will probably look back and realize how much there is to see around the Yard. For a college campus, it is not only beautiful and well-kept, but also historic. Once in a while, we should slow down, walk down Stribling, and appreciate the appeal of the Yard.

Service Assignment

After three and a half years of day-dreaming about lives in the Navy after the Academy, Service Assignment finally puts an end to the wondering. Although the interview process made the evening a bit anti-climactic for many, the process of selecting a school date and SWO's selecting a ship still generated an air of excitment. As WRNV announces the ship picks in a play-by-play from Smoke Hall, the firsties file down to line up in class rank to make their choices. Of course, after Smoke Hall, the fun really begins. Service community parties and voluntary head-shavings for Marines are a key part of the night.

And so, by the end of the night, the first class know where they will spend their first tour. They are another step closer to graduation.

100's Night

Hundreds Night was a chance for the firsties and plebes to remember where they were coming from and where they were going. It was also a chance for the plebes to mess with the firsties who have either been on their cases or just innocent bystanders. The firsties made the most of the opportunity to dress strangely, do terrible chow calls, think of strange new capabilities for platforms, blow off "upperclass", and make up menus that even King Hall has never thought of. Yes, tradition continues; remember, '98, in only three more years, it will be you.

South Pacific

The story of South Pacific is a familiar one to many people. Even for those who had seen the movie or other productions of this musical, however, the Glee Club production was something special.

The setting was designed to give something of the illusion of a USO tour group presenting South Pacific on a carrier in the South Pacific during World War II. Between the band on stage in dungarees, the ushers in sailor suits heckling the ensign who was the MC, and the less than enthusiastic skipper who was given a script to play the part of the CO in the musical, the effect was tremendous. It was a fitting tribute for the Academy's 150th Anniversary and for all those who died in World War II.

Spring Break

Spring Break is one of the most fun-packed leave periods of the year. Although it is only about a week long, mids will drive to Florida or fly to Europe, the Caribbean, or Mexico. This year, a group of mids toured Israel and the Men's Glee Club went to Italy. Upon returning, a large portion of the Brigade is broke, but at least we had fun.

Bell- Ringing

The bell-ringing ceremony is one of the Academy's chances to honor its outstanding sports teams. After some music from WRNV and speeches from the Supe and Dant, the team captains who led their teams to victories over Army in the last season come forward to ring the Enterprise bell once for every time that Navy beat Army in that season. After the captains, the Supe, Dant, and coaches ring the bell, and, finally, all of the team members each ring the bell once. Overall, Navy teams have won more matches than Army in all Army-Navy competitions for the last twenty-seven years.

Mess Night

The second-class's Mess Night is one of the few perks during the dark ages. This formal dinner brings together the officers on the Yard with the second class. Many dignitaries are also invited to attend, including retired admirals and generals.

This year's guest of honor was Admiral Larson. In his address to the class, he discussed the need for junior officers to know themselves and their people and to take care of their subordinates. Following the toasts, the mids adjourned to Dahlgren Hall to mingle with guests of the Mess.

I-Ball

One of the Academy's favorite Spring traditions is the International Ball, or I-ball. The children of ambassadors to Washington come to the Academy for this formal dance. It gives midshipmen the opportunity to show off their social graces and, maybe, test some of their foreign language skills.

The dance spreads between Memorial Hall and Smoke Hall, however many participants also wander out onto Tecumseh Court or other parts of the Yard to talk and escape the crowds.

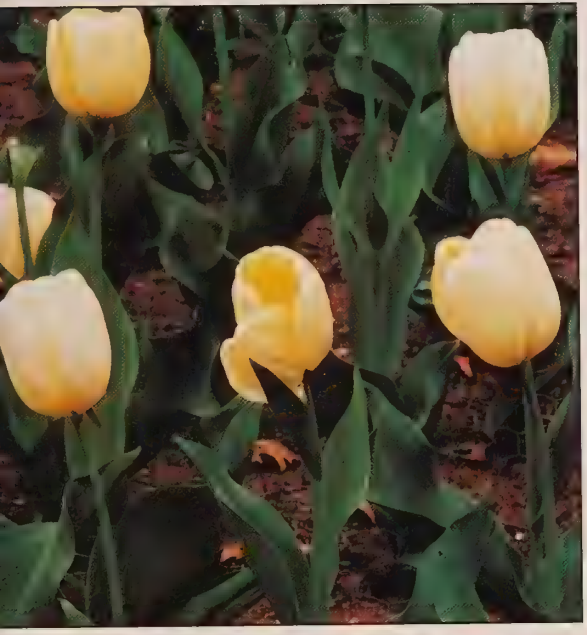
Spring

Spring in Annapolis signifies many things. The end of the semester is in sight. Stribling Walk is groomed and planted, blooming with tulips almost overnight. The thirty-six day countdown to Herndon begins. The trees burst into flower, and spring fever attacks the Brigade, especially the firsties whose end is now in sight.

Fortunately, the usual spring thaw was nonexistent because of the lack of snow this year. The dry and mild spring made this enjoyable season even better, though spring fever still made the days drag on.



NAFAC

The Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference is an annual event that draws guests of all ages from across the country. Each year a series of speakers and round-table discussions focus on prevalant issues. This year's topic was "the ethics of international relations."

NAFAC has been going on for 35 years and draws many distinguished speakers. This spring, one of the key speakers was Secretary of Defense William Perry, who spoke to the Brigade as a part of the conference.

Croquet

In an attempt to foster better relations between the two schools several years ago, a St. Johns' College student suggested a friendly competition with the Naval Academy. Not the football rivalry of years ago, but croquet. This year, after months of practice, the 13th Annual croquet match under the Liberty Tree took place.

Following the match, mids and Johnnies along with dozens of spectators, enjoyed a reception on the St. John's lawn. Though the Johnnies won this year, everyone was already looking forward to the rematch next year.

Dinings In and Out

Most companies sponsor a company dining in or out once a semester. They are intended to provide a training experience for midshipmen to practice their social graces. However, mids can enjoy an evening with others in their company in a less formal atmosphere at dinings-in. It's a chance to get to know each other away from the pressures of the Hall. A table for one is reserved for POW/MIA, and another table for one is reserved for the "Vice." The Vice declares, "This meat is fit for human consumption," and then has the opportunity to inflict the punishment of grog on unsuspecting classmates for violations of the Mess.

Mids: A History

The core of the Academy is the Brigade. Over the years, midshipmen have witnessed many changes, but many things remain the same. For 150 years, mids have probably always griped about liberty (or lack thereof) and drill (although drill used to be infantry practice, which included lessons on how to climb walls). However, we also know that we are part of a proud tradition of people who have volunteered to serve our country in uniform.

Dances

Commissioning Week festivities always include several dances. The N* Dance takes place during the weekend before Herndon. Athletes who earned varsity letters this year could finally relax and have fun after a year of practices and hard work. Following the Ring Dance over the weekend, the Graduation Ball was held on Monday for the graduating class and their families. Finally, the Farewell Ball invited all mids with their parents and guests. The Naval Academy Band provided music for dancing in Dahlgren, but guests were free to socialize throughout Dahlgren Hall and outside on the terrace.

Herndon

For almost an entire year, the plebes keep one goal in mind: Herndon. Every class attempts to best the time of the other classes currently at the Academy. '96 had the time to beat with 1 hour, 38 minutes. The class of '98 managed to breaka modern record, but unfortunately the record they broke was longest time to climb Herndon: 4 hours, 14 minutes. Steve Fortmann finally sat on top of Herndon, cutting through the packing tape with an anchor off one of the combo covers being handed up. While most plebes celebrated at their accomplishment, some were just glad it was over.

Ring Dance

One of the biggest events during Commissioning Week short of graduation is the Ring Dance. Dates flew in from across the United States and even a few foreign countries, and Radford terrace was transformed into a stage and dance floor for the occasion. A lighted fountain provided a colorful centerpiece for the evening, and a loud fireworks display added to the night-time color.

Couples were photographed with their dates by the oversized rings. Dates could wear the mid's ring around their neck or on their lapel. And, finally, after three years of work, the class of '96 put on their rings after dipping them into binnacles containing the waters of the seven seas and the Severn River, water flown into space by Academy grduates on a Shuttle mission, and water melted form Antarctic ice that fell as snow the year Christ was born.

Garden Party

One of the major social events for first-class and their guests during Commissioning Week is the Superintendent's garden party. As guests passed through the receiving line, they were greeted by the Superintendent and his wife, along with the company officers and chiefs. The rest of the party is an opportunity to socialize with classmates and guests in a formal setting and the beautiful gardens of Buchanan House.

Baccalaureate

The Baccalaureate services are a chance for the Chapel communities to recognize their graduating first-class. Many mids volunteer as Sunday school teachers, choir members, Eucharistic ministers, readers, and ushers, and receive thanks from the chaplains and staff. This is also a chance for parents to attend church with their mids. Parents are praised by the chapel community for their never-ending support of their mid throughout their four years here.

It is a final goodbye. Baccalaureate services are the last time the graduating class will attend church in the "Cathedral of the Navy" as midshipmen. In a few short days, however, some return to the Chapel as newly-commissioned Ensigns or Second Lieutenants to be married. If one pleasant memory of USNA will remain with graduates for years to come, it is "Non Sebi, Sed Patriae" and the Chapel of the Navy.

Color Parade

After this, it's all over. The Color Parade is the last parade of the year for the Brigade, and probably the last time that anyone in the graduating class will ever have to march.

This year, the Color Parade recognized 16th Company as the top company in the Brigade, and 30th Company turned over the colors to the new Color Guard. The color girl assisted the Superintendent and the 16th Company Commander transfer the colors. This year the firsties were told to only jump into the Lejeune pool, but some couldn't avoid the temptation of the traditional Radford fountain.

Blue Angels

The Blue Angels are perhaps the most spectacular, and noisy, part of Comissioning Week. Due to the number of new pilots with the group this year, the practice continued for more than an hour on Sunday. The performance itself, on Monday, was not as long, but just as noisy and incredible. It was, as always, a crowd pleaser, with hundreds of parents and guests crowding the athletic fields on the Severn and mids watching from Bancroft Hall windows and breezeways. This precision team flies a show and the fly-by for graduation every year and is always an eagerly anticipated part of Commissioning week activities.

Graduation

For four years, the 905 members of the class of '95 worked and waited for this day. After Secretary of the Navy Dalton addressed the class on eight traits of leadership, diplomas were passed out by company. Then 117 Marine Second Lieutenants and 770 Navy Ensigns affirmed the oath of office. Six would receive commissions in the Air Force, two in the Army, and ten foreign nationals would return to their countries to serve in navies around the globe. With three cheers "for those leaving us" and three for "those we leave behind," the covers were tossed. All that remained to be done was to put on officer devices and attend parties and weddings.

Weddings

For some midshipmen, Commissioning Week festivities don't finish until a few days after graduation. Many of the newly-commissioned ensigns get married very shortly after graduation; this creates a demand for groomsmen, sword-bearers, and guests that will keep the new graduates occupied for a while.

While some travel to their hometown for their wedding, many couples still prefer the grandeur of a wedding in the Chapel. Although these weddings are necessarily short because of the number of people being married there, the setting more than makes up for it. Besides, maybe now that the graduates are looking back on their years at the Academy, they realize that their four years at "home" here will be the source of a lot of happy memories for years to come.

FOOTBALL

The 1994 football season was one of high emotion and enthusiasm. The Navy Football Team has always been known for playing above itself, a tribute to the dedication of each team member. The 1994 season was no exception. Captains Chris Hart and Jim Kubiak led our team into each game confident that the Navy team would prevail. They took it on their shoulders to keep us together as a family no matter what the outcome of the contest. From San Diego State to Notre Dame to Army, our team displayed a high sense of comradery, spirit and sportsmanship. This season was one of ups and downs; but no matter what, we never gave up- from our first game in San Diego to the thrilling home victory over Cotton-Bowl bound Rice. The highlight of our season was a thrilling road victory over Tulane in the Superdome (New Orleans). This win marked the first time in 3 years that a Navy football team won a road game. The football team traveled all over the country to play teams. San Diego, New Orleans, Colorado Springs, and South Bend were among the places we took on opponents.

The 1994 150 lb football team had an exciting season. Most of the games were decided by the first half with the Midshipmen on top. Star underclassmen such as 3/c Brian Voss (voted MVP for the season), 3/c Dave Behnke, 2/c Archie Tinjium, and 2/c Shawn Stephenson led the offense, while the defense was led by a host of first and second class. 1/c Pat Haney, 1/c Eric Gates and 2/c Ramon Vasquez were named All-League on the defense. The 150's showcased an explosive offense and a stinging defense which led to their 6-1 season. The only loss came to Army in a close game decided by the last play of the game.

Our thanks go out to the coaching staff of the team and to all our parents and supporters. From the graduating firsties, good luck to the team next season. Beat Army!

SOCCER

Navy's Men's Soccer team started off the 1994 season with high expectations. The mids returned 12 lettermen and 9 starters from the previous season. Navy got off to a great start going 4-1 in their first five games. Navy continued its success throughout the season, but had a rough time in post-season play in the Patriot League. The mids finished up 9-5-1 overall and 3-3-1 in league play. In a must-win game for Navy, the mids travelled up to West Point to take on Army. Both teams played a hard fought game, but in the end the mids fell 2-1. Navy finished up its season with two victories over Lehigh and Bucknell, giving the underclassmen a boost for next season. Individual honors went to 1/c Seth Walters and 1/c Mike Curtis. Walters was named to the All-Patriot League first team and Curtis was named to the All-Patriot League second team. Walters was also named to the 1994 All-South Atlantic second team.

W. SOCCER

This year the Varsity Women's Soccer Team established itself as a team with a terrific future. A lot of returning talent combined with fresh faces proved to be the winning recipe here at Navy. Although our record may seem average, it was our first year with a full varsity schedule and to say the least, we turned a lot of heads. Congratulations to Amy Hakola and Cori Thornton, Patriot League All-Stars, and Ty Westinghouse, Honorable Mention.

We owe our success to outstanding teamwork, sportsmanship and dedication. The team is also indebted to a terrific staff that kept us motivated and believed in us so we could believe in ourselves. Special thanks go out to Carin & Jim, Jeff & Nancy, Captain Chamberlain, Lauren, Caty and Gabe.

Rob and Christa: You are truly great people and players. I'm going to miss our chats in the back of the bus! Best of everything!

To the players: You are all so very talented and have a great future ahead. Don't let down and keep this team on the winning track. Thanks for the memories! Beat Army!!

WATER POLO

This year Navy Water Polo had one of its best seasons ever. Led by team captain Jon Sanchez and seniors Brian Gilhooly, Doug Munz, Chris Sambar, Jim Martindale, and Mike Szilard, the team achieved a 6th place finish at the NCAA Championship Tournament.

The team began its year with a trip to California where it made a strong showing against some top-ranked teams. Some highlights of the trip include two wins over UC San Diego and a sudden death overtime loss to top-ranked Long Beach State. Other highlights of the season include a sounding defeat of Air Force and a 3-6 loss to third-ranked Cal-Berkeley. The mids maintained an undefeated record in the conference until suffering a loss to UMASS in the championship match for the Eastern Conference.

Although they lost to UMASS, Navy earned a bid the NCAA Championship Tournament in California after defeating Brown University in a wild card match at home. At NCAA's, Navy avenged their loss to UMASS by pummeling them 11-3. Congratulations to the class of '95 for leading Navy Water Polo to a triumphant season.

CROSS COUNTRY

The Midshipmen Harriers had a disappointing season to say the least, but to Coach Al Cantello in his 25th season this was definitely considered a rebuilding year. Navy started an unprecedented seven plebes in the top twelve runners this year, giving them invaluable experience for the future. In keeping with his style, Coach Cantello did not shelter his young team from tough competition as Navy faced ten of the top twenty ranked teams during the season in head-to-head battle.

Senior team captain Jesse Kemp led the team throughout most of the season with freshman standout Alex Shelley running as a dependable number two man. The rest of the top five was rounded out with sophomore Jon Clemens, senior Chad Froelich, and freshman Simon McKeon.

Although the midshipmen had disappointing finishes at their Conference and Eastern Championship meets as well as a painful loss to Army on home soil, a team almost exclusively made up of sophomores and freshmen was hardened with some of the toughest competition a cross country season can offer. With this experience and the master guidance of Coach Al Cantello, the Mids will surely return next season to regain the glory that is the legacy of Navy Cross Country.

The Navy Men's Basketball team came into the 1994-95 season as the defending Patriot League champions. Having lost only two seniors from the previous season, the expectations were high. The team worked extremely hard during the preseason in preparation to live up to those expectations. The season got off to a rocky start with a loss to Air Force in the season opener. The team continued to work hard, however, and managed to turn things around to finish with a 20-9 overall record. In the process, they swept Army in all three meetings and avenged the earlier loss to Air Force! The team lost only one league game at home during the season. Although the team finsihed third in the Patriot League, Navy ended up playing in the tournament championship for the second straight year after beating Lehigh and Army in the first two rounds. But Colgate proved to be too tough on its home court and Navy was sent home one victory short of a repeat championship.

The 20-win season makes this team one of only five teams in Navy Basketball history to win 20 games in a season! This program is moving in the right direction. Navy basketball will lose five seniors this season, but there is an enormous amount of talent left to continue to bring the pride back to Navy Basketball!

With a new coach and three freshman starters, Navy Women's Basketball took on the Patriot League with a whole new spirit. Shocking all basketball followers, Navy shotgunned to the top half of the league and remained there until they were knocked out of tournament play in the semi-finals. Led by team captain Kate Wells, other Navy superstarts include First Team All-Patriot League player Adria Schneck and Rookie of the Year Rebecca Dowling. Rebecca became the first rookie to make both the All-Rookie team and the Second Team All-Patriot League. Coach Jon Sanchez was named Coach of the Year and inspired his team to a winning record which Navy Women's Basketball has not seen in years. The team also succeeded in winning the N-star after four and a half consecutive years of losing to Army.

HIPMEN

The 1995 Naval Academy Wrestling Team started the season off with a bang by winning their 10-team Navy Classic tournament. They followed this performance with a strong seventh place at the prestigous 16 team tournament, the Virginia Duals, losing to only three of the top 15 teams. The Mids also competed in the Cliff Keen Las Vegas Classic and the Midlands Tournament.

The highlight of the season was the weekend of March 4-6 when the Mids hosted the EIWA tournament. Although they fell short of their goal to win the tournament, they finished third and qualified four seniors for the NCAA tournament in Iowa City, Iowa. Mike Clayton (126), an Iowa native, started Navy off with a second place finish, losing to a Lehigh wrestler in an exciting overtime match. Kurt Kyle (142) also made his first appearance in the Eastern finals and finished second to earn a berth in the national tournament. Doug Zembiec (177), the New Mexican flash, came in and lashed Cornell's Carlos Eason 12-6 for his second EIWA title. This was Zembiec's third time in the Eastern finals. Dan Hicks (HWT) reached the finals for the fourth time in his career and won his third title with a 7-2 beating of Lehigh's Bill Closson. Hicks was also awarded the Fletcher Award for most points earned at the EIWA tournament in a wrestler's career by amassing 76 points.

Navy had one All-American, Doug Zembiec, who placed eighth in the nation in the 177 pound weight class. Zembiec won his first two matches before bowing to the eventual runner-up from the University of Oklahoma. He then won his next match to earn the title All-American.

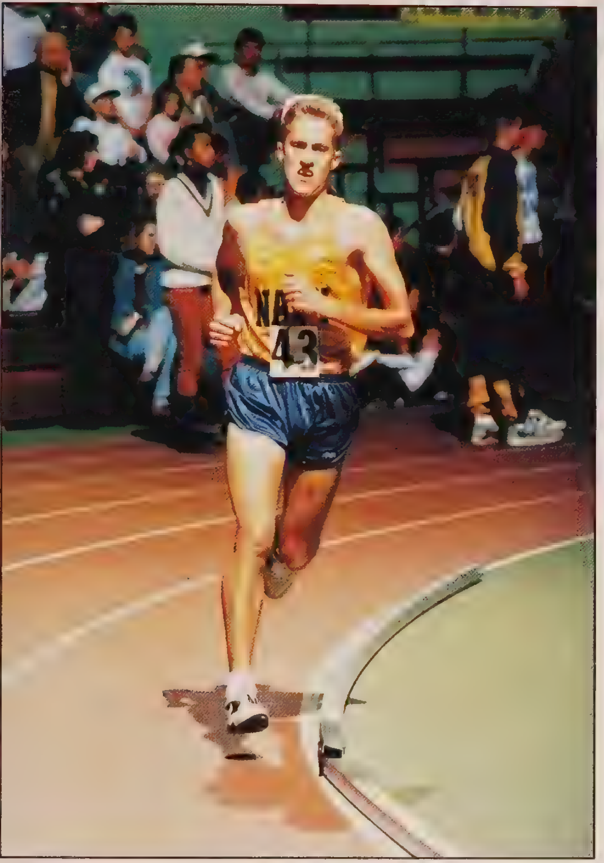
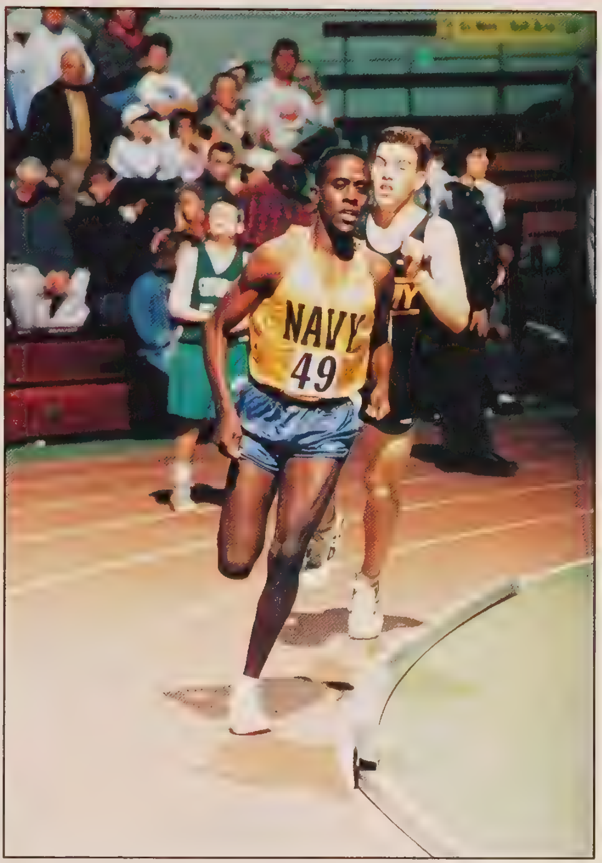
INDOOR TRACK





The 1995 Indoor Track team ended its season with a record of 6-2. This would not have been possible without the efforts of three major scorers: 1/c Mike Jefferson, 1/c Jesse Kemp, and 2/c Greg Sutton. The six victories came against U Penn, NC State, Georgetown, William & Mary, Maryland and Mount St. Mary's. The NC State-U Penn meet was definitely the most exciting meet of the season. It came down to the achor leg of the last relay (4x800), where Kemp ran away from the field in the last 200 meters. Our two losses came to Princeton and, unfortunately, Army. The season could not have been made a success without the men and women from the Annapolis Striders, who officiate the meets. Special thanks to Ray Chronister for his expert diagnosis, to CDR Phelan for his fair professionalism, and to the Naval Academy bus drivers for their patience with Cantello. BEST WISHES TO THE TEAM IN 1996...

The men's swim team completed the 1994-95 season with an impressive 11-2 record and a fourth place finish at the Eastern Seaboard Championships which included 25 lifetime best swims and 6 Academy records. The team began their season with a landslide victory over Notre Dame. They went on to beat Dartmouth and Brown in a tri-meet at Brown University. The team completed the first half of their season 4-0 with an exciting victory over Army. After a short break over finals and a week of leave, the team gathered in Key West for a week of training. They spent over four hours a day in the water preparing for the second half of the season, swimming in excess of ten miles each day. They returned to the Academy early to resume their dual meet schedule, only suffering two losses in the next seven meets. Victories included a decisive win over Yale, their first loss to Navy in several years. The Navy team finished their regular season with a dual meet at Columbia University, winning by one point. This year's team was a young one, comprised of only three seniors, Neil Sexton, Neil Koprowski and captain Jon Hurst. Seven Academy records were broken this season. Junior Ian Johnston was on two record-setting relays and also set individual records in the 100 and 200 yard breaststroke. He also qualified for the NCAA-B time standard in both individual events. Junior Paul Kress and Sophomore Chris Ornee were each on two record-setting relays and each also set a record in an individual event. Ornee set the 200 yard individual medley record at Army, and Kress set the 200 yard backstroke record at Easterns. Other members of the record-setting relays were seniors Jon Hurst and Neil Sexton, junior Steve Platt, and freshmen Briton Smith and John Lofton. Smith also met the NCAA-B time standard in the 500 yard freestyle. The underclass significantly contributed to the team and will continue to improve their outstanding performance.

The Navy women's swim team started the 94-95 season with many new faces, including 20 new plebes, 2 cadets from Air Force, and a new officer representative. We finished an amazing year with a record of 10-2, defeated only by Notre Dame and the University of Maryland. Energy and excitement were contageous as a reflection of the team's personality.

In December there was a battle for a sixth in a row victory over Army. We doubled their score (200.5-99.5) and managed a few recons before leaving the Hudson. Pompano or bust. During Christmas Break the team road tripped to sunny Pompano Beach, Florida, where we practiced in the water for 5 hours a day, ran, lunged, squatted, then crawled back to Ronnie Dee's. We managed to get a couple of homemade meals before swimming the infamous "open water swim." Thanks Mo. The dark ages were filled with countless meets and bus rides, but we emerged tapered, shaved, and ready to race. We won the Patriot League Championship for the fourth year in a row. Heidi Fearon broke two of her own meet records and Coach Purdy was named Patriot League Women's Coach of the Year. For the first time ever, Navy won every relay event. The team made the final trip to Harvard to compete in the Eastern Women's Swim League. We finished in 8th place, the highest placing to date.

We started the season with 40 swimmers who gave up their Thanksgiving and Christmas, practiced twice a day, missed weekend after weekend, and dedicated themselves wholeheartedly to swimming. The 40 ended the season tired and happy. We never would have made it without Capt. and Mrs. Bruner, Dr. Good, Hoss, Joe and John. Thank you: the divers, Zu the spirit captain, the psyco distance freaks, cheese, morticia, devil, bit, radar, the LAZY sprinters, baumbad, mung, the frat plebes, shane & jules, XC walk-on, zoomies, "the ones who stayed behind," mono, eyeballs, navy shorts, and the rest of the DDB gang. Stick together, we were successful because we had each other. I wish I had one more season. Good luck going after one more star.

DIVING

The USNA Varsity Diving season was outstanding. After months of double and triple bouncing dives at practice, both the men's and women's teams triumphed undefeated in dual meets. Most importantly, both CRUSHED Army.

When Coach Joe Suriano puts the heat on with lectures of his three everchanging rules, just pretend to puff on a cigarette and smile at him in a knowing way. That, or point him in the direction of those on the 10 meter who refuse to jump and let him vent his wrath on them instead.

"Those boards are looking pretty dirty..." and "Who's turn is it to turn on the hot water?" were clues to the plebes. Joe haggled Nikki daily, and Martina...does she go to school here? Patrick a.k.a. "Carlos" needs to bulk up over the summer so Marc can have some competition in their wrestling matches: no more "Joe? Marc broke Patrick!" reports.

"Marcus of Navy" broke in Joe and brought music and weightlifting back into our lives. Ray saw more of Darcy than we did and all the guys stopped to stare as Katy, the team social queen, slinked through her approach. Although Nate's one practice per week was rotten, he always pulled it together for the meets. Any bad practices Jenna had would ruin her week, and then he wouldn't even get to go mountain climbing in the snow. How many practices did Dave make? I don't remember seeing him too much. Caro was the practice speed demon and Joe's 1st class pet...we all know who was on her mind.

Well, there is nothing like crash days and playing charades with the meet referees, but the time has come for Caro to hang up her sammy (lucky!). For everyone else...the USNA Hot Tub Club will resume its meetings next fall.

ALPINE SKIING

In it's fourth season of competition, the USNA Alpine Ski Team had its strongest showing ever! Highlights of this season include the advent of a women's team, a hard working pre-season of dry land training, the 1995 pre-season Christmas camp held in upstate New York, and five weekends of racing culminating with regional compeetition for the Navy Men's Team. Some individual accomplishments include Bruce "Popeet" Donald finishing his first ski race, Rob "Chimp" Conners standing on the awards podium for the first time in his four year career, Ron "Big Daddy" Gibson squeezing his mass into a GS suit for all to see, and Jon "Strippy" Townsend retiring from the sport he has loved since the beginning of time. Good luck to those that follow!

Navy Hockey finished the season ranked 13th nationally among 130 teams with an overall record of 14-7-2. The Icemen finished 7-3-2 in their league prior to the playoffs. They defeated clubs from Lehigh and WPI to win the prestigious Crabpot Tournament and bring the illustrous Crabpot trophy back to Annapolis. Navy Hockey finished in second place in the SCHA playoffs this year.

The Navy icers attribute another winning season to strict discipline, rigorous conditioning, and SEAL-like teamwork. Mike Murnane, John Bruzza Charlie Case were all recognized as standouts in the league this year and were named First Team All-Tournament players. John led the league's goaltenders with an incredible average of only 3.11 goals scored against him, and a save percentage of over 90%. Mike and Charlie stood near the top of the league in points scored. Mike had 25 goals and 24 assist for a total of 49 points, while Charlie added 18 goals and 21 assists to the team's totals.

Watch out for an even tougher Navy squad next season. The players, coaches, and personal conditioner Chief Carpenter have their eyes set on Championships. The team will return with a strong squad made up of all but this year's four graduating seniors: Captain Brian Erickson, Mike Murnane, Patrick Brophy, and J. Smith. Taking on the leadership role for next season as captain will be Tyler "Reg" Dunaway, with Ryan Brown and Joey Carney acting as his assistants. - Brian Erickson, captain

GYMNASTICS

The Men's Gymnastics team saw their best season this year in their four years under head coach Dr. Sho Fukushima. The mids started off the season with their best showing yet at the West Point Invitational followed by second place at the Navy Invitational, first place at the James Madison Invitational, and victories over U Mass, Springfield, Southern Connecticut and Army, winning back the N-star after two years. Under Coach Fukushima and assistants LT John Cooney and ENS Ty Redmon, the mids posted a 31-15 overall record. Seniors Scott McCracken, Ken Peter, Jody Williams, and team captain Josh Levy led the team in competition. Juniors Bo Hanle and Franz Helchinger, along with youngsters Matt Tucker, Brain Pritchard, Sean Vieira, and Kyle Nurminen added to Navy's tough lineup. The team also benefitted from a motivated group of hard-working plebes who helped keep workouts intense up in McDonough Hall and consistently contributed to the team score: Rob Flannery, Kevin Bauer, Peter Lombard, Jason Fesnak, and Vinse Evans. With this talented young squad, Navy will be in contention for tops in the EIGLs next year.

- Josh Levy, captain

W. GYMNASTICS

The Navy Women's Gymanstics team, thanks to the efforts of president 2/c Tabatha Trotter, was alive and flipping this year. As a club sport with over twenty members, the gymnasts were always busy - motivated twisters trying to defy gravity. Coach Jack Bliss and officer representative Lt. Sally Smith lead the charge by providing encouragement and support for all members.

Navy's leading all-arounders this season were 4/c Jennifer Trippel, 3/c Patricia Dienhart, 3/c Ann Leurs, and 2/c Tabatha Trotter. Strong specialist were 3/c Lisa Shiroma, 3/c Ronda Weaver, and 2/c Lisa Gibellato. However, all members contributed greatly to the team in attitude, ability, support and enthusiasm.

This season the team competed in two Blue & Gold meets and several dual and tri-meets. Navy stood strong against tough varsity competitors such as Ursinus, Rhode Island College, West Chester, and Bridgeport. Team members showed tremendous improvement under expert coaching. Despite setbacks such as losing an all-arounder to an ankle injury, the overall team score improved drastically from a beginning season "high" of 124 to an ending season score of 156.

Special thanks go out to the officers of the team, to LT Sally Smith, and especially to Coach Jack Bliss and his family for all the extra hours of hard work and dedication.

BOXING

The Navy Boxing Team had a great season beginning with three wins at the New York Athletic Club in a collegiate exhibition show in November. The winners were J.J. Puga, Todd Alexander, and Chandler Comerford.

The winners of the Brigade Boxing Tournament were: Colin Keenan (139 lbs), Liam Hulin (147 lbs), Todd Alexander (156 lbs), J.J. Puga (165 lbs), Chandler Comerford (172 lbs), John Bradley (180 lbs), John Ohman (190 lbs), and Chris Eichenger (HWT).

The travelling team, which consisted of 147 lbs and up, sported victories over Penn State, Lock Haven, Army, Air Force, Duke, VMI, Citadel, and the Pennsylvania State Penitentiary (at Rockview).

Navy Boxing never lost a head-to-head match against Army of Air Force and took the second place National Collegiate Boxing Association title at the Air Force Academy. Navy's national champions were Todd Alexander, John Bradley, and Chandler Comerford. John Ohman was a national runner-up.

The team wishes to thanks our coaching staff and supporters for helping us have a successful season. Good luck to the team next season!

- Chandler Comerford, captain

SQUASH

Navy Squash is a group of dedicated guys who are full of pride and spirit. We had lost a lot of players from the season before, but this did not stop us! Coach and Lt. Sprenger put their hearts into making us fighters, players who never give up. We never did give up in the trenches. I will never forget our 5-4 win against Bowdoin up at Princeton. It was the last match of my career and I will cherish that victory for the rest of my life. We were the underdogs but we proved how much desire we had to prevail. Thanks for the roadtrips and all the good times. Navy Squash is a family we will always be a part of. Be proud of that, guys. I'll miss you and remember you forever.

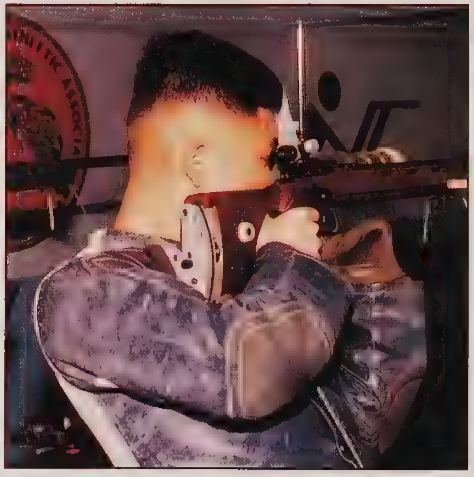
RIFLE



The motto of the Navy rifle team, "One shot, one kill," describes all of the shooters on the team. Every shooter on the team puts in 110% every day at practice and even more in matches. The team had an outstanding record this year and have their sights set even higher for next season. We placed first in air rifle in the MAC Championships and sixth overall in the NCAA National Championships. Hosting both tournaments, Navy came out strong and let everyone know we meant business. It was a pleasure shooting for four years under Coach Ray Anti. Thanks, Gundog.

Over the course of this past season, we witnessed all but two of the old Navy team records broken by our two-time All-American, Joe Johnson. Great shooting, Joe. Still, without the help pf Frank Okata, Harold Kim, and Jason Reap most of our wins would not have been possible. This year was also unique in that the team had the best crew of managers it has ever had. Credit for this incredible task goes to 1/c Ted Voltz. I would also like to thank our motivated and dedicated officer representative, Major Gary Oles, USMC, and our faithful and supportive academic representative, Professor Bruce.

Overall, this has been the best season I have ever had with the team. I will always remember each and every person on the team, including LT Opra. You didn't think I would forget, did you, Ted? Thanks to all of the recruits, walk-ons, and returning shooters. I can't wait to see you guys all letter and go all the way to win nationals next year. Remember, there are no points for second best. Shoot straight!

It was a season to remember for the 1995 Navy baseball team. The Mids won a school record 33 games, won their second straight Patriot League championship and advanced to the NCAA Regionals for the first time since 1986.

Navy rolled to the Patriot League title by winning a conference record 19 games against 5 losses. The Mids captured the Patriot League title on the final weekend by taking three out of four games from Army, including a 23-3 victory in the regular-season finale.

Navy advanced to the NCAA regionals by beating Delaware in the NCAA best-of-three Play-In series. Delaware, which was ranked in the top 25 for most of the year, won the first game, 7-1, but Navy came back to beat the host Hens in the next two games, 3-2 and 6-2, behind strong pitching performances by 1/C Kyle Murray and 3/C Tom McLemore.

Navy dominated the Patriot League postseason honors as 2/C outfielder Brian Bernth was named Patriot League Player of the Year, 2/C Toby Moore was the Patriot League Pitcher of the Year and Scholar-Athlete of the Year and Bob MacDonald was named Patriot League Coach of the Year.

SOFTBALL

VISITOR
NAVY

The 1994-95 Fastpitch Softball team ended the season with a winning record of 17 wins and 9 losses, playing in both the fall and spring season. This year's team was outstanding both offensively and defensively, and most of our losses came at the hands of larger varsity programs. The highlight of the team's season was soundly beating Anne Arrundel Community College when they were undefeated and ranked 12th nationally among junior colleges. In the Fall the team came in second in alocal tournament, and in the Spring they participated in a 16-team tournament for Division II schools, earning a 2-2 record.

The team leader both offensively and defensively was captain Rowena Olson. She performed exceptionally well behind the plate and led the team in batting with a .450 average. Pitching was handled by 2/c Diane Quattrone and 3/c Sarah Schopp. Quattrone compiled a 9-3 record in the fall season and pitched a one-hitter against Charles County Community College. The team was coached for the second year by LT Margaret Lluy. Assistant Coach was Professor Caitlin Mullen and O-rep was LT Gilbert Smith.

The Navy oarsmen enjoyed an exciting and fast-paced Spring season. The Midshipmen finished with an overall record of 8-1 and a second place finish at the Intercollegiate Rowing Association Championships. Navy was slow to start with a four second loss to Princeton, but bounced back the next week at the George Washington Invitational by defeating Georgetown, Temple, and Drexel. In front of a huge home crowd Navy swept Syracuse and Cornell in all races to win the Goes Cup Trophy. In the premiere triangular race of the season, Navy defeated Harvard and Pennsylvania on the Charles River in Boston to capture the Adams Cup for the first time since 1987.

After graduation the Heavyweights travelled to Camden, New Jersey to compete in the IRA Championships. Navy was not even considered to be a top-five contender, but upset Northeastern to make the final, then sprinted past Washington to secure silver medals behind Brown and defeat Harvard, Princeton, and California. The second varsity won the Petite Final to finish seventh overall. The open four took second behind Fordham. The varsity pair finished sixth overall, the straight four placed fourth and the varsity four won the third level finals.

The Navy women's Lacrosse team ended its 1994-95 season with a record of 7-3, the final win being a great victory over Army. The team worked successfully as a unit on and off the field and has now defeated Army three times in a row.

Leading the team this season were the three firsties: captain Deborah Roberge, Cheryl Pence, and Cath Cunningham. We will never forget the never-ending runs, Debbie and Cheryl's noses, Amanda's arm, Mo being the CP, Jen D - "great, Mo is...", hubba hubba, coach's numerous accidents, coach in the goal, Sully's chiapet, Amy - "is it time yet?", small pinnies, star drills galour, BoundEries, the Maryland game and oh, what a game that was, poetry?, Cath's music, etc.

Remember to play the game because you love it. From the firsties who are moving on, good luck next season and next year. We will miss you but will never forget the times. Despite the narrow loss, Navy went on to place higher than the Cadets in three tournaments in which both teams participated. For the first time in the 16-year history of the event, Navy highlighted its season with a first place finish in the 21-team Navy Spring Invitational and the Mids just missed qualifying for the NCAA Tournament.

Second class Craig Bangor led the Mids averaging 77.1 in 13 rounds. Bangor placed third at the Patriot League tournament and earned a spot on the all-league team. A pair of plebes, Aaron Wright and Jim Day, were second and third respectively in scoring on the team.

GLEE CLUB MUSICAL

The Glee Club Musical is a large, flourishing organization whose purpose is to both entertain and satisfy that artistic urge in all of us. Drawing on the wealth of talent available here at the Academy, the musical is comprised of over 100 members of the Brigade, Faculty, Staff, and the local Annapolis community. Each winter, the Glee Club Musical puts on a full-scale musical show. Examples of past shows include such Broadway favorites as "Caberet," "Guys and Dolls," and this year's musical, "South Pacific."

This year's production of South Pacific was a complete success, opening to great reviews and sold-out houses. Dedicated to the memory of those Naval Academy graduates who died in the South Pacific during World War II, this show not only provided the members with an opportunity to display their talent, but it also touched each of them in a singularly profound way, providing memories that will last a lifetime.

MASQUERADERS

Ever since 1849 the Masqueraders have been providing a theatrical release for dramatically suppressed midshipmen. Lighting, sound, set design and construction, and of course acting and directing are experienced every year in the months of work that go into the Masqueraders' Fall Production. The Spring sees the club hosting a one act play competition; a chance for midshipmen to see the plays they have written put on the stage.

The Masqueraders, the oldest of all the Brigade's extracurricular activities, continued its tradition of presenting professional quality plays this year with their production of Arsenic and Old Lace by Joseph Kesselring. Mahn Hall and the audiences were whisked back to Brooklyn, New York circa 1940 with a two-story set and all the costumes and paraphernalia of the era. A psycopath nephew and his alcoholic German plastic surgeon who return home to find two aunts who murder old men as a charity made for an apparently morbid yet raucously hilarious production.

DRUM AND BUGLE CORPS

Never lacking the sound to "Rock the House," the Drum and Bugle Corps may be best remembered as the often driving force behind Brigade spirit. This year the D&B became a constant at football games, basketball games, pep rallies, and even spirit dinners.

The Drum and Bugle Corps first appeared in 1914 at the Navy vs. St. John's college baseball game, establishing its place as the oldest continually active drum and bugle corps in the world. It is also the Brigade's largest support activity. Today the Corps fields over 60 horns and 20 percussion instruments. The midshipmen staff plans and runs all Corps activities, with musical assistance from the USNA band. Though lacking a full time director for the first time in four years, the Corps still thrilled crowds at home football games, two NFL games, and the Army vs. Navy game. The fall also included trips to Bowling Green, Oh., Notre Dame, and New Orleans. The spring brought with it a return to New Orleans for two Mardi Gras parades, the traditional Harrisburg, Pa., "Serenade in Brass," and a Disney World Easter Parade.

GOSPEL CHOIR

Formed in 1985, the Gospel Choir was originally an E.C.A. founded by 20 members. Today, under the direction of Mrs. Joyce Garrett and the assistance of Officer Representative, LT Richard Bryant, and Spiritual Advisor Chaplain Lewis, the Gospel Choir has grown into a strong musical representation of the Academy's tradition of excellence and service.

The choir's performed at the the Naval Academy Chapel, as well as at local churches, schools, and community centers. There are also two major concerts, one in Ferbruary, in celebration of Black History Month and the other during Commissioning Week. The choir also goes on an annual spring break tour each year. Past tours have taken the choir to Atlanta, Chicago, Detroit, Orlando, St. Louis, and Bermuda. This year, the gospel choir has already performed in West Palm Beach, Fl., and in Chicago's famous Regal Theater. As a result, the choir received recognition from various national publications including the Chicago Tribune.

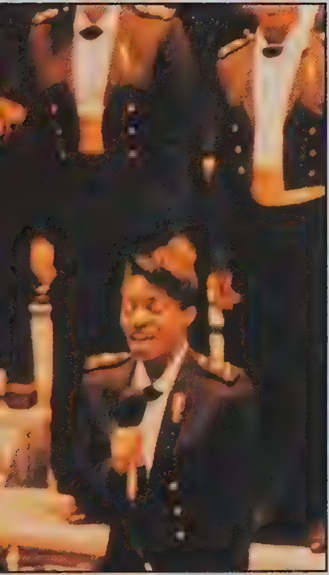
TRIDENT BRASS

On a Monday or a Wednesday night, as you pass through Fourth wing basement on your way to pick up a pizza, listen, and you'll hear the sounds of a different era. The melodies of Glenn Miller, Duke Ellington, and Count Basie rise from the nearby band room. These are the sounds of the Trident Brass, the Naval Academy's Big Band and the defenders of the Golden Era of Swing.

Under the batons of MU1 Steve Barzal and MU3 Ken Pfabe, this group of 30 talented musicians has provided music for the International Ball and the Herndon Ceremony. In additon, it has diversified this year into other areas. From its ranks comes a jazz quintet and a trombone quartet. In addition, its talented musicians help fill the ranks of the D&B and Glee Club musical pit orchestra as well as other official and unofficial midshipmen musical groups.



Row 1: Blair Keithley (President), Holley Boren, Eric Mueller.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

As the largest musical organization on the yard the 112 members of the Men's Glee Club helped celebrate the Academy's 150th anniversary with one of its most successful years. The year began with a week-long trip to the sunny beaches of San Diego, where they helped Navy's assault of Jack Murphy Stadium. With the arrival of the Holiday Season, the club offered its talents to the country in its annual Christmas in Washington presentation. With the coming of 1995 and as a tribute to 150 years of leadership and commitment, the group dedicated "An Evening Under the Stars," and Verdi's Requiem to all distinguished Naval Academy graduates. The culmination of the year saw the men travel to the cities of Rome and London to sing in the halls of Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral, Winchester Cathedral, and St. Peter's Basilica. With a common dedication to service through musical performance, the Men's Glee Club has reminded the world of the rich history and tradition associated with USNA.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

The largest women's organization at the Naval Academy, the Women's Glee Club consists of 60 members of all classes. Under the direction of Mrs. Jeanne Kelly, the chorus offers a channel for the artistic talents of women at the Academy. The club has a large repertoire, ranging from patriotic songs and sea chanties to classical and sacred selections to Broadway musical pieces. This fall, the club toured New York City and Pennsylvania and had its annual Christmas Concert in Memorial Hall. In March, the chorus sang for the commissioning of the U.S.S. Laboon (DDG-58) and in May, they toured Florida including performances on the American Stage at Epcott. This year's Spring Oratorio featured Verdi's Requiem.

TRIATHALON TEAM

The race is on.... This year's triathalon team has proven their athletic endurance and strength in top performances in local competitions such as the Marine Corps Marathon, Sea Colony Triathalon, Army 10-miler, and Tri-Maryland Biathalons. Led by Captains 1/c Brent Fulton and Carol Argao, tri Navy is preparing for Half-Ironman qualifiers in the spring. Whether in the pool, running, or biking on the road, this team can be found pushing the body's limits. New faces and old join in the pursuit of competition. Look for the team to join 2/c Mike Martin, Heather Barackman, 3/c Jon Drexler, Emily Hornsten, and 4/c Steve Beede in pushing this team to its extremes next year. GO TRI-NAVY.

MEN'S LACROSSE CLUB

The Navy Club Lacrosse Team is coming off a nearly perfect season with only one loss in the '94 spring season. Their only loss came in the national championships game. Navy Club returns nearly everyone from this squad and looks to improve upon its shortcoming this season. Lost to graduation are defensemen Shekitka, Peterson, and midfielder Powell. Team co-captain, Club President and starting goalie James Fabiszak returns as the backbone of a relatively young Navy defense. Juniors Fred Wilmot, John Sarno and Matt Collins will have to fill the spaces of the seniors. Co-captain Nick Bruno will be tasked with calling the signals for the Navy attack this year. The Navy offense looks to duplicate its 15-24 goal games. The team wants to be National Champions.

FELLOWSHIP OF CHRISTIAN ATHLETES

Fellowship of Christian Athletes is a non-denominational ECA that focuses on fellowship among fellow believers. Meeting once a week as a large group and having various bible studies, or huddles, during the weeek, this group's main goal is to strengthen each individual's walk with Christ. There are other activities as well, such as a retreat held annually. This retreat is used to get the members away from the pressures of the Academy and to become focused on Christ to gain a deeper understanding of the Bible and Christ. FCA believes in reaching new people for the cause of Christ by witnessing to others through example, as directed by the scriptures.

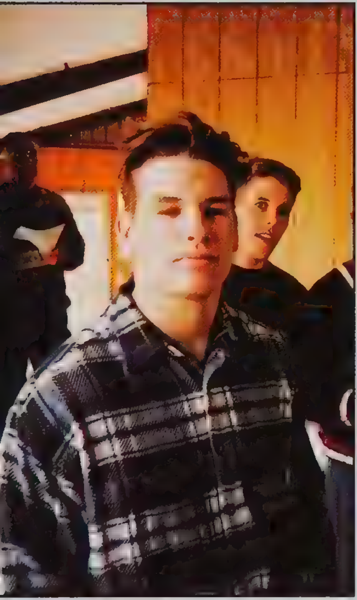
OFFICERS' CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

"On a mission for the Master in the military." This statement summarizes the purpose and aim of all that OCF is and does at the Naval Academy and throughout the military service. Through prayer and preparation, OCF focused on evangelism for 1994-95. This focus was embodied in the preparation of members for concerted prayer for the lost through 2Plus, through envangelistic Bible studies and through the lifestyle envangelism taught in Living Proof.



President Andrew Chapman and Secretary Jonathan Haynes

In addition to preparing its members for a career of service, OCF invited noted author, James Sire, and Christian songwriter and performer, Danny Byram, to meet with the club. The OCF also organized an evangelistic retreat with Pastor Keith Peck. Thirty midshipmen participated in Association of Military Christian Fellowships World Conference in Virginia Beach, Virginia.

CHEERLEADERS

NATIONAL CHEERLEADERS ASSOCIATION
NCA NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP 1995

The USNA Cheerleading squad began the season with a bang, returning several members of last year's squad and ready to lead Navy in spirit. With the coming of a new Commandant and Superintendent, "Spirit is O.K. at USNA" became the motto for a motivated and excited Brigade.

The Cheerleaders began the year during the summer attending UCA Cheerleading Camp at the East Tennessee State University and NCA Cheerleading Camp at the University of Georgia. Navy made a name for itself in the world of collegiate cheering and let their presence be known.

The football season began with a pep rally for the Third Fleet aboard the USS CURTIS WILBUR with the classes of '63 and '65 -- fun and sun on the beaches of San Diego! Trips to Bowling Green, Ohio; South Bend, Indiana for Notre Dame; New Orleans for Tulane; and Colorado Springs for Air Force helped bring friendly faces to otherwise hostile territory.

The true highlight of the season was the highest level of spirit ever during an incredible Army Week. With momentum slowly building during the week and roaring loud by the Army/Navy pep rally, amid chants of "Don't sit down!" and "Don't shut up!". the Brigade out yelled, out cheered, and out classed the Army Cadets. Despite a close loss, Navy showed a level of spirit hard to top, and the Navy cheerleaders were right there in the thick of it.

CANNONEERS

This was a great year for the Cannoneers, consisting of two member from each class. They used two 40mm saluting guns and their miniature cannon to help lead the Brigade in spirit. The Cannoneers fired for scores and kickoffs at all home football games, as well as the Notre Dame and Army games. The Cannoneers also took the miniature cannon on the road to several away games. They marked elapsed time during the Herndon climb, and ended the year with a traditional salute to the graduating class of 95.

President Jay Astle and Vice President Chris Smith.

COMBAT PISTOL CLUB

The USNA Combat Pistol Team is geared toward the development of small-arms combat technique. They are the premier practical shooting organization at the Academy and dedicated to the sport's development and growth in popularity. Practical shooting requires putting shots on multiple targets with both speed and power. A typical course of fire is a series of steel plates and enemy silhouettes in a "problem" situation that the shooter must solve with mental and physical ability, all while under pressure of time. Course of fire often include moving and stationary targets, partially hidden targets, and no-shoot hostage targets. The shooter's goal is to engage all targets as fast and as accurately as possible. The team trains and comptetes year-round.

HIGH POWER RIFLE CLUB

Realizing the importance of small arms training for future Marine Corps and Naval Officers, the Highpower Rifle Team practices precision marksmanship at distances from 200 to 1,000 yards. The team of motivated shooters, led by Capt. R. Lokensgard, USMC, and Midn. 1/C Ted Mullin, spent most Sundays during the Fall and Spring at the Naval Station rifle range shooting M-14 service rifles. The team shot numerous matches in such places as Bridgeville, DE, and Quantico, VA. At Quantico, the team shot against the national champion Marine Corps Rifle Team.

SILENT DRILL TEAM

The USNA Silent Precision Drill Team takes the discipline and teamwork of the Brigade of Midshipmen to its highest level. The "Jolly Rogers" perform for many different functions on the yard, and travel throughout the country. The team is composed of all classes, and is led in practice and performance by the first class. The team was led by 1/C Epaloose and the officer representatives were Capt. Clyborne, USMC, and Capt. Esparza, USMC. The Drill Team allows midshipmen the opportunity to demonstrate their physical and mental discipline, in both military basic and exhibition drill, in support of the Brigade.

AIRBORNE TRAINING UNIT

Pre-Airborne indoctrination has been established as grounds for selection for the 200 billets midshipmen are alloted each year to attend the U.S. Airborne School in Fort Benning, Ga. During this rigorous indoctrinatnion, midshipmen encounter mental and physical challenges that prepare the individual to jump out of a variety of high-performance fixed-wind and rotary aircraft. As one of only four jump units in the Navy, the ATU conducts operations with SEAL teams, Marine Corps Special Forces units, and foreign jump units in a variety of locations including USNA's Dairy Farm, Puerto Rico, New Orleans, and Florida. It is the largest jump unit in the Navy.

SEMPER FIDELIS SOCIETY

The Semper Fidelis Society exposes midshipman of all classes to the opportunities that await every officer of the Marine Corps. Whether it is training in Quantico or on joint operations with cadets at West Point or listening to guest speakers. Semper Fi is an outlet for those interested in endeavors other than the standard naval curriculum taught at the United States Naval Academy.

NAVAL ACADEMY DIVE UNIT

The Naval Academy Dive Unit is a professional organization run completely by midshipmen. In addition to maintaining the qualifications of midshipmen as Navy divers, it screens candidates for the Navy's dive school, and provides a professional atmosphere for midshipmen to discuss topics with Officers from the Marine Corps, Special Warfare, or Special Operations communities. NADU also provides a means for mids to retain their qualifications by organizing times and places for requalification dives.

PROTESTANT MIDSHIPMEN CLUB

PMC currently includes all protestant midshipmen in its ministry. Members meet weekly for a Sunday evening Contemporary Worship Service. Guest speakers and musicians helped make the Contemporary Worship a wonderful time of joyful praise to the Lord. The PMC sponsored retreats during the year in order to allow members time to relax away from the Academy and to enjoy fellowship with other midshipmen. The PMC welcomes anyone interested in knowing Jesus Christ and works to provided cohesion among the Protestants of USNA.

CATHOLIC MIDSHIPMEN CLUB

The Catholic Midshipmen Club is a religious ECA dedicated to serving the USNA Catholic community. Throughout the year, they continue to distribute food to the needy through the Washington SHARE program, assist in restoring the Annapolis Birthright center, organize the fall and spring retreats and socials, and invite Catholic officers to give us a perspective on life in the fleet.

NAVIGATORS

The purpose of the Navigators is "To know Christ and to make Him known." This comes from the Bible in Matthew 28:19 which says, "Go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit and teaching them to obey everything I have commanded you." We started with a fall retreat to gain our focus and direction for the year to come. During the second semester we invited friends to our annual witner retreat and then to Colorado for a ski trip. When all the dust settles, friendships are what we are all about. "And by this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you love one another."

MOUNTAINEERING CLUB

The Naval Academy Mountaineering Club is an organization which supports a wide variety of outdoor activities for both midshipmen and faculty. The club is subdivided into four branches which include mountain biking, rock climbing, camping and hiking, and water sports. All levels of experience are welcome and encouraged on club movement orders to local outdoor sites which include Great Falls and Shenandoah National Forest in Virginia, Whitetail Mountain in Pennsylvania, Loch Raven in Baltimore, and several indoor climbing gyms in Maryland. After its foundation only a year ago, the club has become the largest ECA at the Academy.

SCUBA CLUB

The USNA Scuba Club provides midshipmen with the opportunity to earn PADI dive qualifications from Open Water Basic to Instructor. It also sponsors recreational trips, and runs the most incredible winter and spring break vacation packages know to mankind. This past year, the club spent winter break in Grand Bahama Island around Freeport, and then took over 100 midshipmen to Bimini, Key West, and Grand Cayman during spring break. For weekend diving, the club visited the shipwreck laden coast of North Carolina and dove the German submarine, U-352. Over 375 midshipmen participated in club activities this year, making us one of the largest ECAs in the entire brigade.

MIDSHIPMEN ACTION GROUP

The MAG has been very busy over the past year. From Baltimore to Annapolis and places in between, the group has organized various efforts to better the community. Projects have ranged from building low-income housing in Baltimore to repairing parks in the Annapolis area to shovelling snow for those unable to do it themselves. This year, midshipmen have contributed over 8000 hours to the surrounding area. Mids have worked with children, the elderly, sick, and homeless. Working closely with the Public Affairs Office and Character Development, the group is constantly getting more requests for projects. On any given weekend there may be two to five projects. Overall, the community and the mids get the most out of this relationship.

FLYING CLUB

The Naval Academy Flying Club exists to assist Midshipmen attain civilian flight training. Midshipmen are exposed to classroom instruction adn have the opportunity to receive actual flight training. While on the flight line, Midshipmen are able to extablish their own perspective regarding the aviation community and decide if being a Naval Aviator is the correct career choice.

The flying club works with the Naval Air Systems Command Flying Club to provide aircraft, Private Pilot Ground School, T-34B Ground School, and safety seminars. This year their are two Midshipmen federally certified flight instructors

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERS

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, one of the world's largest engineering societies, is an organization dedicated to improving the communication between fellow engineers as well as keeping members up-to-date in technological changes. The Academy's student section provides students with the opportunity to learn more about their field of practice. The student is given the opportunity to meet other undergraduate students at various universities in addition to practicing engineers through conventions, contests, lectures and field trips.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

We are open to all upperclass chemistry majors. Plebes planning to select chemistry are often invited to our functions as well. We often conduct our meetings at lunch time, and invite speakers to talk on chemistry related subjects. This year we are trying to coordinate a chem club picnic, like we've had in the past.

SOCIETY OF NAVAL ARCHITECTS AND MARINE ENGINEERS

The U.S.N.A. Student Section of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers have had a busy year. In the fall, a guest speaker from NAVSEA came to speak to the members about the NC-21 program and a revolutionary trimaran warship design. This year has been filled with long hours, late nights, design projects, and labs. Through it all, the 'Narcs have become a close knit group and will remember their time in the "Club."

SOCIETY OF WOMEN ENGINEERS

The Society of Women Engineers is a national organization supporting both female student and professional engineers. It has three main goals, to inform young women of the qualifications and acheivements of women engineers and the opportunities open to them, serve as a center of information on women in engineering, and encourage women engineers to attain higher levels of educational and professional achievement. The Academy has had a SWE chapter since 1988 and attended the National Conference at UMBC. For the first time SWE has had male members.

SOCIETY OF AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEERS

The USNA branch of the Society of Automotive Engineers provides access to one of the few professional societies open to all engineering students. SAE includes operations with all current forms of mechanically powered transportation. This society is involved throughout industry in creating and maintaining high standards of safety. SAE is involved in Aeronautical, Automobile, Railroad, and Trucking industrie. Each year, the USNA branch enters competitions in several areas of engineering applications sponsored by the national SAE organization. The Hybrid Electric Vehicle is the largest project, with 25 midshipmen of different majors working to send a gas-electric Ford Escort to Michigan. The SAE sponsors events such as this year's Chevrolet display/presentation and the Diesel engine lecture.

ASTRONOMY CLUB

The Astronomy Club provides midshipmen of all backgrounds the opportunity to learn about the night sky, telescopes, and the fundamentals of astronomy. It provides its members with provocative insight about the wonders of the universe. Members get hands on experience with telescopes and other equipment necessary to explore the night sky. Club activities include video presentations, trips, and the opportunities to meet with astronomers and scientists who are leaders in their fields.

LATIN-AMERICAN CLUB

The Latin American Studies Club was formed five years ago to help make the Brigade more aware of Hispanic culture and to serve as a support group for "Latino" Midshipmen. The club appeared at the Association of Naval Services Officers conference in Norfolk and at The Society of Mexican-American Engineers and Scientists conference in Los Angeles. For National Hispanic month, the library hosted a heritage display and in cooperation with the Spanish-speaking Annapolis community the first all-Spanish mass was held in the Main Chapel. Other activities included a new WRNV radio show, Valentine Cookie Grams, a new big-brother/sister program and a dance.

FILIPINO-AMERICAN CLUB

The Filipino-American Club has been a means for the growing population of Filipinos in the brigade to come together and share each other's common background and culture. The club is not exclusive to Filipinos but to anyone interested in learning about another culture. The club also networks with other Filipino/Asian clubs in other area colleges and allows members to meet with other college-age students. This year the club provided escorts for the Miss Philippines-America Pageant at Virginia Beach, Virginia.

TAU BETA PI

Tau Beta Pi National Engineering Society was established at the Naval Academy in 1983. It is the oldest and largest engineering honor society in the nation. In order to be inducted into Tau Beta Pi, midshipmen majoring in engineering must ranki in the top 20% or better in their class. Tau Beta Pi serves to promote interest in engineering at the Naval Academy and local middle schools and high schools.

89.7 WRNV

WRNV is not quite like the other ECA's at USNA. It provides live broadcasts daily from 0600-2400, hosted by the midshipmen themselves, but that is only the beginning. WRNV also maintains a significant presence as a Brigade Support Activity, working with the Cheerleaders and the Drum and Bugle Corps for all home games and the pre-game for the Army/Navy game. WRNV also supports the Brigade's other sports and ECA's such as the PMC, the 150lb Football team, meals in King Hall, and a variety of tailgators and Commissioning Week activities.

AMATEUR RADIO CLUB

The Amateur Radio Club is an organization which fosters interest in the operational aspects of communications. The methods of communication vary from High Frequency radio to satellite voice data transmissions. The club also assists its members in obtaining amateur radio licenses granted by the FCC. The high point of the year was the annual Army-Navy game football run when the club assisted 13 company by providing a communications link to the various groups involved. This activity gave members good experience with tactical communication in a realistic environment.

CLASS OF '96 OFFICERS

The class of 1996 continues its steady, and long awaited progression towards spring and, ultimately, first class year. The biggest feat of the fall was a class-spnsored "2 for 8" tailgater following the Rice football victory. This celebration of our service commitment was complete with Bar-B-Que catering, music and dancing under a circus-size tent, and the infamous 32 oz. pewter mugs, with plenty of beverages to fill them! The spring holds the planning of the traditional Mess Night, a classs community clean up project, and one UNFORGETTABLE May Ring Dance.

1995 CLASS OFFICERS

First Row: Mo Curran, (Vice President) Todd Young (Treasurer). Second Row: John Fleet (President).

The ‘95 Class Staff organization has been active in many activities in their First Class year, as well as previous years. The Service Commitment Tailgater and 2/c Mess Night highlighted 2/c year for ‘95. Firstie year started off with a successful Parent's Weekend Tailgater and Welcome Wagon in Alumni Hall, with Naval Academy parents and friends purchasing Class of 1995 paraphernalia. The 1995 Class Officers' plan for a ‘95 dining-in before graduation as the last event as midshipmen, but not as a class. ‘95 plans to have many tailgaters in the future. On behalf of our class, the 1995 staff wishes the United States Naval Academy a happy anniversary, and best of luck for 150 more years.

1997 CLASS OFFICERS

First Row: Andrea K. Johnson (Vice President) Thomas Wagner (President). Second Row: Randy Cruz (Treasurer).

The ‘97 class officers had their hands full this year with planning for the May tailgater, adapting to rule changes and getting class shirts. The officers saw a shift in office when class president Tom Wagner was forced to resign, but Vice-President Andrea Johnson stepped up to the post. With the big help of Tom's handpicked class senators, Treasurer Randy Cruz, and Secretary Mike McGreevy, the year saw great success for 1997. Class shirts arrived in April, and with them, lots of funding for next year's "2-for-8" tailgater. Despite all the rule changes, the class and its officers leave behind a successful year, and look forward to "civvies" and cars next year.

This year the Class of ‘98, under the leadership of its class President Mike Ogden and the other officers, sponsored several events. Perhaps the most notable of which was the Plebe Hockey night. Almost the entire class filled Dahlgren to capacity as we cheered on our Navy Hockey team. A scoring raffle was held and hundreds of dollars worth of prizes were given away. Also of note is the Toga Party thrown by the Classs of ‘98 during football season. Although somewhat hindered by the weather, toga wearers turned out in numbers to support and rally behind our football team. The spirit spot was a huge success as 1000 fourth class midshipmen crammed into Tecumseh Court, and shouted a motivational "Beat Army!"

PROTESTANT CHOIR

The USNA Protestant Chapel Choir has again been an important part of the 11 o'clock Protestant Service every Sunday. The members of this dedicated group get together on every Wednesday and Sunday to raise their voices to the Lord and to share in the strong ties of friendship and fellowship which has always been an integral part of the choir.

This year was highlighted by two weekend trips: one to Norfolk, Virginia, and th other to New York City. Both weekends, the Protestant Choir represented the Academy as model midshipmen and enjoyed sampling a bit of freedom. These young men and women are to be highly commended for their efforts and commitment.

CATHOLIC CHAPEL CHOIR

The Catholic Chapel Choir serves the Catholic community of the Naval Academy by leading midshipmen and other parishoners in music and song during the 0900 Sunday Mass. The Choir makes an annual trip to Governor's Island, the Coast Guard base in New York City harbor, and traveled to New Orleans this Easter. It is said "If you sing well, you pray twice." So the choir hopes that by its presence during the Mass, we can encourage the parish to join us in praising God through song.

TRAP AND SKEET CLUB

First Row: Michael Horn. Second Row: Clint Tracy, Johnnie Caldwell.

The time is upon us to once again reflect on the past year's accomplishments of the Trap and Skeet Club. Otherwise affectionately know as the USNA "Road and Gun club" or the USNA "Redneck Club" among others. Last year we graduated a large number of bubbas and will find ourselves saying farewell to several more this year. As we scatter ourselves around this great country of our's we will take with us many good memories. One of the high points of every season is the National Trap and Skeet shoot, held in Oklahoma City last year. We finished 10th in the nation. We also had shoots in New York and several in Maryland. As the team knows, it's not all business. Many nights are spent in "meetings" at our local hangout the Red Hot and Blues reminiscing about past hunting adventures and fishing escapades . This year we are once again geering up for Army and Natinoals.

SMALL ARMS CLUB

First Row: Jason Stillwell, Ethan WIlliams. Secon Row: Edward Mullin, Frank Shone.

The Small Arms Club is comprised of the members of the Highpower Rifle Team, Combat Pistol Team, International Pistol Team and Trap and Skeet Team. The club members promote the shooting skills that officers in the Marine Corps and the Navy must have. Futhermore, club members train on weapons that will be used in the fleet, such as the M-14, 9mm and .45 pistols, and shotguns. Even with the diversity of weapons, all club members have the sam goal - putting ordnance on target.

SKI CLUB

The Ski Club gives hundreds of eager midshipmen the opportunity to quench their thirst for speed on the snow. Weekend trips to the mountains of Pennsylvania and Maryland provide an escape from the sometime long and sleepy Dark Ages. Everyone from beginners to the double experts are entitled to use the ski storage/tuning room, ticket and rental discounts, and transportation to the various hills. With over 900 members, skiers from the Naval Academy are praying for snow and shredding up the East Coast.

DOLPHIN CLUB

The Dolphin Club has anything and everything to do with submarines. As the only club on the yard that deals exclusively with them, they are very busy each year with special events and one time opportunities that target the submarine community. For example, they sponsor submarines that come to the Academy as the ship in the Yard. They arrange special tours for club members as well as dragging the sub's wardroom to meals and around the Yard. In the spring they sponsor the Sub-Heroes Reception / Birthday Ball. It is a great opportunity for submariners all over to come and meet the mids. As a club they organize trips to various research facilities and other area events. Through the dedication of its members, the Dolphin Club is growing into one of the largest clubs at USNA.

MIDSHIPMEN AVIATION CLUB

The Midshipmen Aviation Club gives midshipmen intersted in a career in Naval Aviation an opportunity to learn about the community and take part in several trips to airbases in the surrounding area. Members of the MAC have the opportunity to earn backseat qualifications as well as time in jet flight simulators. The club also offers opportunitiese to hear speakers well-known throughout the aviation community. It is a great oppportunity for Naval Aviation enthusiasts as well as future Naval Aviators.

MODEL UNITED NATIONS

In its first full year at the Academy, the Model United Nations club made its mark. This past November the club opened the Academy to high school students who participated in the United States Naval Academy Model United Nations Conference of 1994. It was the first of any such conference held at the Academy and was an amazing success. During the second semester the club went on the road, sending two teams to international competition in Montreal, Quebec, two teams to the North American Model United Nation in Toronto, Ontario, and a team to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization simulation in Washington, DC. At each of these the club meet with success and further secured the national ranking it won the previous year. Even though it is a fledging ECA it remains undefeated against either Army or Air Force teams.

NAFAC '95

First Row: Benjamin Shupp (Director), Gavin Duff, Jesse Lankford (Asst. Directors).

The Naval Academy Foreign Affairs Conference is one of the most midshipmen-intensive events occuring at the Academy. It is a forum for the exchange of ideas between students from across the nation and around the world, and serves as an invaluable tool for broadening the experiences of both midshipmen and civilians. For four days, delegates participate in itellectual exchanges in round-table conferences, listen to distinguished guest speakers, and absorb expert opinions from the Observers and Senior Advisors. It is a great event for the Academy and for the midshipmen. The staff are all proud to be a part of it.

BRIGADE SOCIAL AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

The Brigade Social Affairs Commitee organizes all mixers and formal balls at the Academy. This year's highlights were the Autumn Ball and the Valentine's Day Ball. The BSAC also runs all of the Brigade Concerts with such acts as: Spyro Gyra, the Beach Boys, and Mary Chapin Carpenter.

BIG BROTHERS-BIG SISTERS

Todd Copeland (President), Matt Smith (Vice President).

Big Brothers/Big Sisters at USNA is a chapter of the national organization of the same name. Local children of single parent homes are paired with midshipmen and officers that have similar interests and backgrounds. The adults act as mentors for the children and give them a chance to see more of the Naval Academy and the Annapolis area. A number of group activities offer opportunities for the pairs to spend time with each other and other pairs. Members are also encouraged to spend time together individually. The midshipmen involved dedicate a large amount of their limited free time to the program, but they gain an incredible amount from the relationship.

PUBLIC RELATIONS COMMITTEE

Aaron Adams.

The Public Relations Committee is a small group of midshipmen who provide statistical work for the Naval Academy Athletic Association. Throughout the year PRC does stats for Navy football, men's and women's basketball, men's lacrosse, and women's soccer.

JEWISH MIDSHIPMEN CLUB

First Row: Elaine Luria, Julie Nichols. Second Row: Aaron Kleinman (President)

The Jewish Midshipmen Club is an opportunity for all members of the Brigade to interact with Jews here at the Academy, in the Annapolis area, and in military community. The club meets twice a week: on Wednesdays for discussions about Jewish issues and on Fridays for Shabbat services. This year we kept busy by taking trips to New York City, Ocean City, Israel, and Washington, D.C., as well as doing community service, attending religious retreats, and sponsoring the annual Hannukah Happening Dance and Midshipmen Passover Seder. The purpose of the club is to have fun while increasing our appreciation of the Jewish community and faith.

BAPTIST STUDENT UNION

First Row: Scott Stringer (President), Phaedra Haussler (Treasurer). Second Row: GeraldJames Santiago, Zachary Williams, Robert Fannon, Shantel Utton

The Baptist Student Union is dedicated to the ministry and Christian growth of Midshipmen throughout the Brigade. Through weekly meetings and bible studies, community service projects, and weekend social events with our sister organization, the Annapolis BSU, we strive to bring students to know Christ and encourage and nurture them in their walk with Him. Joining us is a graduate of Southwest Baptist Seminary. We welcome Tom and his service with them.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF AERONAUTICS AND ASTRONAUTICS

The USNA chapter of AIAA is dedicated to the promotion of professional interest in the field of Aeronautics and Astronautics to the Brigade of Midshipmen. AIAA seeks to gain interest in the history and achievements in the realm of aerospace engineering. This is done by providing many opportunities for Midshipmen, interested in aerospace, to participate in such things as field trips and competitions. AIAA also sponsors its own projects for study at USNA, as well as providing guest speakers to talk on current events in the aerospace arena. The National chapter AIAA also provides a direct link to the aerospace community for those students interested in the field of Aerospace Engineering. AIAA provides professional material after graduation.

CHURCHILL SOCIETY

First Row: Chad Downard (President), Wes Hildebrandt (Vice President). Daid Faehnle (Secretary), John Bruzza (Treasurer).

The Churchill Society was named after American novelist Winston Churchill, who graduated from the Naval Academy in 1894 and who by 1920 had become one of the most widely read authors in America. The mission of the society is to provide the Brigade at large an opportunity to experience a wide variety of cultural activities that are offered in the greater Baltimre/Washington/Annapolis area in an effort to broaden the cultural horizons and experiences of its members. This year the society took trips to the Baltimore Opera, the Kennedy Center and the Smithsonian. There were numerous poetry readings, films, noon lectures, and art classes that took place on the Yard; the Johnnies even came over for a few of our events. To keep members informed about events in the area, the society also presented a weekly newsletter.

FRENCH CLUB

First Row: Benjamin Shupp (President) Brigand Kline (Vice President). Second Row: Daniel McCoy (Treasurer).

The Midshipmen's French Club is having a great year in 1995. With its ranks filled with eager francophiles, the possibilities are endless. In October, we took part in the annual Wreath-Laying ceremony at St. John's College, an event which commemorates the sacrifices made by the French during our nation's struggle for independence. We also took part in a similar ceremony in Baltimore the following month. The spring semester brings new possibilities for cultural exposure, and we are looking forward to enjoying the films, plays, music, and cuisine of France.

OCEANOGRAPHY CLUB

First Row: Karen Flaherty (Vice President), David Moore (President). Second Row: Amy Hutchinson (Treasurer/Secretary).

The Marine Technology Society (Oceangraphy Club) started the fall semseter off by assisting the Maryland Environmental Protection Agency on a major project. Using SCUBA gear, club members conducted weekly underwater inspections and cleanings on the vital EPA sensors moored in the Severn River. Spring activities included pizza luncheons with guest speakers, the 2nd annual Crab Feast, and a Dining-Out. Overall the club had another great year as membersip numbers and participation continued to grow.

BLACK STUDIES CLUB

First Row: Carlton Hoye, Sean Boles. Second Row: Lamont Gourdine, Stephanie Mitchell-Smith, Corey Avens, Monika Washington.

The Midshipmen Black Studies Club was chartered to help promote an awareness of the African-American culture here at USNA. The club is open to all members of the brigade and its members represent various cultural backgrounds. This year, the theme for the MBSC has been "born again African." This theme represents a revived effort to recognize the African presence here in America, and the resurrection of the African consciousness in the American population. The club has sponsored many events to include a Tribute to Black History Month, guest lecturers, club socials, and movement orders which promote interaction with the community.

LATTER DAY SAINTS STUDENT ASSOC.

The Latter Day Saints Student Association is a religous ECA set up specifically for the midshipman members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Since our numbers are small here at USNA the association provides a vein of support to LDS midshipmen as well as those investigating the Church. Some of our goals as an ECA are to keep active members involved in service and church activities, stress continued prayer, and scriptutre study, and share the gospel of Jesus Christ so that others might be able to feel his love for them. Activities include dances with young singles in the area and other LDSSAs from nearby colleges, socials, firesides, and other meetings. Each semester we make a trip to the Washington D.C. Temple and at the end of the year we have a dining out as our capstone activity.

CHINES-AMERICAN CLUB

First Row: Robert Wong (President), Aaron Austin (Vice President). Second Row: William Conner (Treasurer), Royce Yung (Secretary)

The Chinese-American Club was established last year as an organization dedicated to supporting the Brigade in its understanding and appreciation of Chinese culture. Trips to Asian restaurants served to provide midshipmen a look and taste of the gastronomical, while trips to the Chinese and Taiwanese embassies helped midshipmen to better understand Asian international politics. As the highlight to this year's activities the club traveled to Cambridge, Ma., to attend the Harvard-Radcliffe Asian-American Intercollegiate Conference. All in all the club had a very successfuly year.

KOREAN-AMERICAN CLUB

The Korean-American Midshipmen Association (KAMA) is the Naval Academy's prime resource for Korean culture-related activities. The ECA provides an introduction to Korean and Asian culture through fellowship activities: formal dinings, conferences, and study groups. Some of the activities that KAMA hosts or participates in are: dinings out with ambassadors and officers, intercollegiate parties with West Point and area colleges, the Smith College semi-annual conference, bible studies and church related activities, and community service project. Mon Gigi Ma!

JAPANESE-AMERICAN CLUB

The Japanese-American Club provides interested midshipmen with the opportunity to learn about and celebrate the culture of Japan. Earlier this year the club hosted a reception for three visiting Japanese students. The club also visited the Japanese Embassy in Washington, D.C., touring the grounds and traditional ceremonial tea garden. The club's spring efforts included a Japanese film night, and a trip to the Cherry Blossom Festival. Through the Japanese-American club all students receive the chance to experience the language and culture of Japan.

DEBATE CLUB

The United States Naval Academy Debate Team is composed of highly-motivated midshipmen with excellent analytical skills, an ability to think and react on their feet, and outstanding speaking skills. Throughout the intercollegiate debate season, from September through March, the Academy Debate Team competes in national tournaments across the country. To prepare for these very intense competitions, Naval Academy debaters often spend 20 hours researching and preparing evidence. In accordance with Navy tradition, they host the best tournament on the east coast. This it was the 39th Annual National Tournament, with twenty schools from across the entire nation. The Debate Team is one of the finest in the nation. They are typically ranked in the top ten nationally and hope to finish in the top five this year year

CHESS CLUB

The USNA Chess Club, the powerhouse team of the service academies, managed to survive yet another year of high-powered quality chess. Meeting every Wednesday night in Dahlgren, the team manages to play a few games of chess for fun in preparation for its annual victims, Army and Air Force. The team is staffed by Secretary Dave Faught, Treasurer Jason Nunez, Vice President Roger Harlan, and President Anant Venugopalkrishna. GO NAVY!!

OMICRON DELTA EPSILON

First Row: Kirsten Murphy (President), Kevin Casto (Treasurer) Second Row: Clint Smith (Secretary).

This year's O.D.E. activities began in October with visiting professor Oliver Grawe, the Chair for Economics and the Defense Industrial Base, as an O'club noon luncheon guest speaker. In November, Dr. Donald Kohn, Secretary of the Federal Open Market Committee, was the month's guest speaker. Dr. Michael Udell, an economist on the Joint Taxation Committee of the Congress, was invited as March's guest speaker. The society closed its year with the annual three day trip to Wall Street the weekend of March 24.

PI SIGMA ALPHA

First Row: Benjamin Shupp (President), Rowena Olson (Secretary).

Pi Sigma Alpha is the Political Science Honor Society, a distinguished group of those who hold themselves to high standards in their studies of the world and its different systems. This year's activities included hosting a forum for local politics that included guest speakers from the state and local governments, as well as the press. Students from area universities attended alongside midshipmen, and all learned something new about local politics.

PI TAU SIGMA

Pi Tau Sigma is the national honor society that recognizes outstanding achievement in the field of Mechanical Engineering. Each year 2/c and 1/c mechanical engineering midshipmen are recognized for achieving excellence in academic performance, extracurricular activities, and community service by being inducted into the U.S. Naval Academy Delta Psi Chapter of Pi Tau Sigma.

Pi Tau Sigma's annual activities include representing the Mechanical Engineering Department at the Plebe Academic Open House and conducting high school visits at local schools.

SIGMA TAU DELTA

First Row: Mike Flynn (President), Todd Mencke (Vice President) Second Row: Mike O'Hara (Treasurer).

The Sigma Tau Delta Honor Society has a mission to broaden and stimulate the critical thinking of its members by exposing them to forms of artisitc expression beyond that of the printed text. The members of the Sigma Tau Delta Honor Society are chosen for their academic excellence and have the desire to seek knowledge in and out of the classroom. They have the opportunity to expand and develop their cultural awareness by taking part in the rich artisitc atmosphere of the Baltimore/Washington D.C. by attending various musical and theater events throughout the semester.

NESA

In the past year, the U.S. Naval Acadmey Chapter of the National Eagle Scout Association has been involved in several scout units, helping local boy scout troops in scouting skills. We held our annual Merit Badge Jamboree in January and dedicated it to Shaun Cox, our fallen shipmate and dedicated USNA NESA member. The event accommodated approximately 1,000 scouts and adult leaders, and using Academy facilities, taught a dozen different merit badges. Last fall we were the backbone of NAAA's scout football game day. We have conducted tours throughout the year for numerous visiting troops. This past April, the Chapter ran an aquatics weekend to recognize the accomplishments of new Eagle Scouts in the greater Washington area. Finally we concluded the year with a dinning-in in Memorial Hall.

SAG

The Surface Action Group is the most important professional ECA at USNA, since over a third of each graduating class serves in the surface Navy. One of the club's biggest responsibilities is to sponsor ship visits whenever a ship comes to the Annapolis area. The USS Deyo came for a visit to the area and challenged USNA to a soccer match. During Commissioning Week the USS Barry, one of the newest ships in the Fleet, made herself available for tours to midshipmen and their families and friends.

SAG's other major responsibility is to assist in Service Selection, now called Service Assignment. Volunteers from SAG help with everything from the ship status board in 4th Battalion Office to the reception area held for all Surface Navy selectees in Mitscher Hall.

Go SWO!

AEROBICS

Krystee Kott (President), Amanda Brooks (Vice President).

The Navy Aerobics Club kept the beat going and gave some High-Impact alternatives in working-out to all our varsity sports teams and midshipmen. Composed of only seven Nationally certified in-structors (Midn 1/c Krystee Kott, Midn 1/c Jaison Haines, Midn 1/c Becky Allen, Midn 1/c Kelley Fredrickson, Midn 2/c Amanda Brooks, Midn 3/c Sarah McGann, and Midn 3/c Jodi Wycoff) the Navy Aerobics Club provided nearly one thousand hours of intense physical training for the Brigade.

REEF POINTS

First Row: Kyle Smoot (President), Patrick Shearon (Business Mannager) Second Row: Tim Phillips (Treasurer).

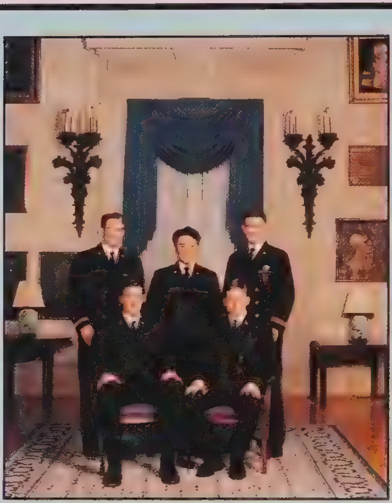
Reef Points was established to help guide the Fourth Class throughout their plebe year. The book covers a wide range of topics not only about the United States Naval Academy but the United States Navy and Marine Corps. The 1995-96 Reef Points marks the 90th Edition as well as a great deal of changes. This year's staff has put many hours reorganizing and updating the information contained in the book.

PHI KAPPA PHI

First Row: Hugh Dainer, Robert Wolf. Second Row: Scott Miller.

Phi Kappa Phi is a mult-disciplinary honor society committed to a constant advancement of the injunction expressed in its motto: "Let the loss of learning rule mankind." First and Second Class of all majors are eligible provided they are in the top 5% in class standing for Second Class and 10% for First Class. There are over 200 chapters in the nation, the Philippines, and Puerto Rico. The Society was founded in 1897 at the University of Maine. The Naval Academy's chapter was chartered on 9 May 1977 and has initiated over 500 memberes since then.

AMERICAN NUCLEAR SOCIETY



First Row: Brooks McFeely, Sean Muth, Joong Ko. Second Row: Timothy Berzins, Robert McHenrey.

The American Nuclear Society is an international organization which caters to students and professionals with an interest in nuclear engineering or any related branch of nuclear science. At the Naval Academy, society membership is comprised of students from nuclear reactor physics classes who have an interest in nuclear engineering above and beyond the basic course material. Most of these will go on to a career in the Nuclear Navy. The club expresses thanks to Professor Wiggins, Professor Tuttle, Professor Harper, and the Good, Good, Good Professor Nelson.

PHOTOGRAPHY

Jay Moorman (President), Chris MacMillan (Vice President).

The photography club provides an outlet for artistic expression in the realm of black and white photography. A full darkroom allows members to process film and develop prints. The lure of the photography club is that it requires no commitment, but rather affords members the opportunity to hone photography skills and create personal works of art.

YARD PATROL SQUADRON

First Row: Wes Hildebrandt, Jow Gagliano, Rob Wyssbrod. Second Row: Jeff Kremer, T. J. Nunamaker, Jesse Espe, Jason Stewart, Peter Rodgers, Jeremy Gray, Thomas Berres, Stephen Ures, Jean LeBlanc.

A few good mids - that defines Yard Patrol Squadron. During the '94-'95 season, the 100 good mids of YP Squadron upheld the outstanding reputation of this ECA. Leading the squadron throughout the past two seasons has been the midshipman command, consisting of the Commadore, the Squadron Staff, and the commanding officers. The Fall 1994 Season was the first season in several years that the squadron was large enough to field four full crews. During the fall the squadron visited two ports, Baltimore and Philadelphia. The third movement order to Norfolk was canceled due to a hurricane.

Second Company

All in all, the Year went without too many ..., er, hitches interfering with the normal daily drudgery. A company picnic, that few could find a way out of, started off the legendary teamwork that was to follow. The Plan for unsats during the first semester was resurrected halfway through the second reign (although without the feedback.) Our outstanding performance in intramurals and academics helped secure our color point standings so as to be no competition. The Great Class of 1996 takes over next year, and 02nd Company is lucky to have such a dedicated and able team. This is assuming, of course, that they're actually allowed to do anything as firsties! The Ac Boards finally claimed Mac. After surviving them for six straight semesters, he realized there was a better life, and we know he'll excel in the real world. He'll probably start a militia in the Nevada desert and we'll here more of him later! Fair winds and following seas, Mac. Semper Fi!

Third Company

Third Company has been extremely active this year and a contender for color company throughout. With consistently outstanding scores in drill (first overall in platoon drill), the PCR (3/C had the highest average in the brigade), company intramurals (brigade basketball champs and regimental soccer and disc football champs) and inspections (best uniforms in the battalion), Third company has excelled in nearly every aspect of academy life.

Activities ranging from a spirited drill display performed at midnight in downtown Annapolis to a combined company effort to restore beauty to the countryside by planting trees were conducted during the course of the year. Training involving the development of the 4/C in the company included a trip to the Pentagon and a YP cruise. Company tailgators and the "Wetting Down" party proved that Third also knew how to have fun. Long live Three's Blind Mice.

Seventh Company

This year's Seventh Company attended and sponsored many events, from dining in's to tailgaters. Every home football game was followed by a tailgater, a chance for seventh company mids to relax, unwind, and celebrate Navy's victory in a warm friendly atmosphere. The dining in was a great success, with guest speaker E.B. Potter the famous historian imparting words of wisdom to the midshipmen. The seventh company intramural teams were without peer, commanding several league titles and maintaining the overall points lead in the battalion. The weekly company sports night was also a great success, adding to company morale and developing new freindships. All in all, this has been one of the most successful and coherent seventh companies of all time.

Eighth Company

The Eightball rolled into the '94 -'95 year under the cover of the "Trash" Cann. Under the command of Park and his barrio rejects, Eightball excelled to football and fieldball magnificence by whippin' up on the rest of 2nd Batt. It even "crossed the T" with TASWIT despite the best efforts of the team. Altering course, the Eightball pulled into the Mack-Truck Stop where it picked up exemplary drill and study capabilities. Second semester brought about the Peck administration, and Chief "So I married a minor" Lanham. The Mighty Eight also made a name for itself by making bigger headlines than OJ, and sponsoring its own personal out-of-company felon. The Eightball: not number one in color points but always number one in your heart. And the Ball keeps on rollin' . . ..

Ninth Company

Having survived the dreaded hammer of breakup, Ninth company carried on in truly admirable fashion. Our outstanding performance in some intramurals and our superior room standards are just a few of the things that we're proud of here in Mighty Nine. Of course, with all the good comes some bad. But together, we've sailed the seas of bad conduct and have returned from our adventures having learned some valuable lessons which we will all carry with us into our lives of Naval and Marine Corps service.

Tenth Company

Welcome to the Dog Pound — where only the knowledgeable survive. The members of Mighty 10 made it through the year armed with their CSORM references and senses of humor. There were the usual time demands of ax-ademics, drill, sports, and ECA's, yet the Pound still managed to excel. For the three upper classes, the year provided yet another change in perspective — '95 in charge, '96 in charge of plebes, '97 in charge of something (rack time management, most likely) — but the overall focus still remained on our development as officer candidates. Make no mistake, the Dog Pound is an exclusive organization — but membership does have its privileges. Hoo-yah 10!!!!!!!!

Twelfth Company

In an effort to combat the stress and bring the company closer, Twelfth Company participated in several activities planned by 1/C Andrew Ledford and 1/C Stan Duplaga.

During the fall semester the Company started the academic year with a picnic on Hospital Point where the midshipmen could cook their own hamburgers. In October the plebes entertained the upperclass during a Halloween Party which included a bobbing-for-apples-in-a-dirty-trashcan contest and a doughnut pigout. A formal dining-in was enjoyed by all (especially those that partook of the grog.) In December Secret Santas were exchanged. The best gift given was a rusted muffler complete with piping. In March the 2nd Annual 12th Company Ski Trip was a success again despite the warm weather and lack of snow. Despite the hardships, Twelfth Company has managed to keep a smile on their face and push on towards the ultimate activity, GRADUATION.

Fourteenth Company

At the start of the semester the hopes for 14 were not good. Destined to be split in the great Brigade reshuffle debacle of 1994, 14 was not known for its professional prowess. The battalion officer brought in a new company officer, Capt. Daniel Conley, USMC, to 14 as a condition of the double secret probation imposed after the coming of Herndon. After '95 and '96 managed to distinguish between the plebes and the youngsters, the company began to synergize. The process wasn't complete, however, until QMCS(SS) Thomas King (an Olympic Solitaire hopeful), arrived fresh from the fleet and full of enthusiasm. Much to everyone's surprise, the company managed to win a parade, the Brigade Fieldball Championship, and to avoid the troubles of years past.

Fifteenth Company

It's been quite the coming of age as Extreme 15 clawed its way to the top of the Brigade. Ever-present in the tie-dye shirts, members of Extreme showed our spirit at Basketball games and football games both there aboard the U.S.S. Holzapfel, the newest pirate ship to sail the waters of Navy-Marine Corps Stadium, and afterwards at legendary tailgaters.

But there was a serious side to a company holding Midshipmen for Others. Extreme spear-headed a host of community service and philanthropic efforts spanning from Homesteader's to local grade-school readings to the Green Gorilla's of tree-planting. Fifteen was always present when someone needed a hand.

Under the precise leadership of 1/c Douglas Lemott and 1/c Steve Bellack, Extreme positioned herself as among the best in the Brigade — great grades, excellent leadership, and the perspective and confidence to enjoy life.

Sixteenth Company

The Sixteenth Company enjoyed a year of working together as a team, seeing hard work pay off, and just having fun. As our new company officer took command first semester, we had a fresh start for the year. To build unity, we had an informal dinner at Piezanno's in the fall and a formal dining-in and a company picnic in the spring.

During the year we fought for Color Company. We excelled in drill with the Third Battalion trophy for first semester and we were first in the brigade for academics. We would like to wish the Class of 1995 good luck in the fleet.

Seventeenth Company

The 17th company story starts in the spring of 1994 with the arrival of Lt. Owens. History since has been a losing battle of unit cohesion and morale. -Just kidding (well, not really). This is not to say we did not have a good time. Between friends, we all discovered what was most important; each other. Ironically, but certainly not by design, it was actually the Lt. who brought many of us together. As they say, misery loves company (17th that is).

Eighteenth Company

This year Fire Breathin' 18th Company has been fortunate to have several great leaders: the first being our new Company Officer, Lt Wasson. Both of our company commanders have done their best, our hats are off to them.

We did our best to have fun, with football tailgaters, Christmas party, Dining In (good job, Plebes). We have excelled in our everyday tasks, all looking forward to the completion of some set of days.

As the second class and the youngsters take over for next year, we hope they have learned something from us, good or bad.

Plebes, you were color company as India, don't let the scramble effect that. Good luck, Semper Fi.

Nineteenth Company

We had a full year in Nineteenth Company, with plenty to keep us busy. Major events encompassing the entire company included a pizza party, and bowling extravaganza, and our company dining-in. Smaller groups of us participated in various community service activities, like Mids for Kids and the soup kitchen. Many squads had dining outs and movie nights to build "esprit de squad." Some squads also used the super bowl as an excuse to get off the yard and party. A group of us visited the family of our fallen shipmate, Shaun Cox, in California over spring break. All of these activities brought us together as a company, and contributed to the spirit that made us the tight unit we were.

Twentieth Company

This year proved to be an exciting journey for all. The year started out with an intensity second to none. This intensity was shown on Worden Field where we won a formal parade, and at Navy Marine Corps stadium where we had the best tailgaters in the Brigade. Fueled by Lisa's delicious birthday cakes, Mugs inspirational words, and a motivated leaders who never failed to perform their duties we charged into the winter. The dark ages weren't so dark, but Spring Break was appreciated none the less. Refreshed from spring break we got back to the basics and took charge of platoon drill and racquetball. The year came to a rapid close and everyone felt better by the journey. In short, the nuts and bolts of it all is that in 20 we do our own thing and everyone knows why!

Twenty-First Company

"This above all—
Never Again Volunteer Yourself.
And so it shall follow,
As the night the day
Thou canst be boned by any man."
—2/c Hamlet

Never one to take someone else's advice, Captain Blackjack and 21 led the way in volunteering: to the Academy, our shipmates, and beyond. We may not have always had the best judgement (a certain Friday night jaunt comes to mind), but we never lost our enthusiasm, spirit ("Cheering with 21st Company today is Father McGeory. God's on our side!"), or sense of camaraderie. Whether working with elementary schools in Annapolis, sponsoring blood drives, tutoring companymates in screws and cables, or cheering wildly for our team (the (in)famous basketball heads), 21 was always standing by with a helping hand.

Twenty-Second Company

Twenty-second company managed to work hard and have fun doing it during this past year. Whether it was getting pumped up for intramurals or for our "envigorating" 0545 company runs we always managed to get in a good laugh. Major Gethers kept us all in line and reminded us of the standards that we are capable of achieving every day. We were always ready to participate in any gungy activity that Major Gethers could provide for us, such as SPIE rigging or singing the Marine Corps Hymn in the waking hours of the day outside of his office. One thing that was never a shortage in double deuce was Marines, whether to ask questions or just bark for they were here for us. Ooh-rah, twenty-two!

Twenty-Third Company

Known throughout the brigade for it's colorful qualities, 23 set a higher standard across the spectrum. While under the white hot spot light of 4-0, we shone brightly for the brass passing through. We adhered to the haze gray traditions of Philo McGiffin during football games and enjoyed Molsen Gold afterwards at the tailgaters. Our plebes, in camouflage, took the squad combat course with authority during plebe summer. A few of us, not to be outdone in any arena, went after Black N's for having red decals and black eyes. Our motivated athletes took the blue ribbon in intramurals. With LCdr Conerly at the helm, the members of 23rd company have had only one course to steer for: carrying on the traditions of the Blue and Gold.

Twenty-Fourth Company

Twenty fourth company has been a shining light to the Brigade this year. We may not have impressed anyone with our color competition performance, but our fieldball team sure made a lasting impression on anyone who tried to get in their way. Support for the basketball team has been stellar this year. The encouragement never stopped for our company-mates who led the team to the Patriot league championship game. (And a thorough thrashing of Army three times). Volunteer trips to the E-course, hard charging 2/C at West Point (What did that place do to him?)- the gunginess never stops on 4-3. There is no doubt, 24 has had an awesome impact on the brigade this year.

Twenty-Fifth Company

"Your husband is who?" marked 25's start in 1995. The new LT brought food, beer, and new life to 6-2. Under his quick smile and short temper, 25 exploded onto the color company scene. Dominating in Academics, Intramurals, and Drill, we emerged as an example of professional excellence. 1995 kept law and order, feasting in the Penthouse wardroom on BagleDogs and Beef Burritos. 1996 kept us on our toes, reinterpreting CSORM, arguing every point, and bending every rule. 1997 entertained us, with courtroom drama, questionable romances, and Phoenix's finest always available for comment. 1998 endured, venting all their frustration in bulletin boards and PQS signatures. Together we survived only loosing a few on the way. Congratulations 25, on another successful year at USNA.

Still hungover from mess night, big stix stumbled into another year with CP. The inaccurately named bunch earned themselves the color ranking of DFL. We had a good time. Not that there's anything wrong with that. Symmes returned, found out the 97ers are still plebes, some classmates helped alleviate room crowding by retiring early. Only racquetball won. 1995 meant a chief sans hair, a wardroom makeover, a few 5 grands, 9 shiny new squad leader notebooks, two more second class, and 3 1/c with off campus housing. Service assignment worked out, sort of. At platoon drill we practiced by running into each other. Agent Peet left early for Quantico. 95 counts days. 96 gets to welcome the last class of the millennium. Later USNA, see you at Davy Jones' locker. Peace.

Twenty-Eighth

Fightn' 28 had a spectacular year. Under the leadership of Scott Drayton and LT Wright, twenty eight was one of the leaders of the brigade. In intramurals, the soccer team under Pat Olsen and the football team under Cale Holman made it to the Regimental Finals. The company performed well in academics and drill. Fightn' 28 was ranked in the top five for color points after first semester. With second semester came a new Company Officer, LCDR Biron, and Company Commander, Mike Davies. Twenty eight held a successful and entertaining dining out organized by Rob Connors. Dave Weinstein and Cale Holman led the company field ball team to Battalion Championships. The company continued to lead the way in drill and intramurals for the rest of the year. Fightn' Twenty Eight lived up to its name and continued to fulfill it's true position as the leaders of the Brigade. Good luck to '95 as they make their way out to the fleet and the underclass as they continue to strive for their goals.

Twenty-Ninth Company

Twenty-Ninth Company had an extremely successful year with the class of '95 at the helm and '96 training the plebe class of '98. Leading the way with pride and professionalism, the company did everything with enthusiasm. When it seemed like every other company in the Brigade was climbing on the 0545 PT wagon, 29th company remained content in the rack with exceptional enthusiasm! All kidding aside, the company was a model of excellence for the rest of the Brigade. One of the highlights of the year was LT Matt Hickey being accepted into medical school. It seems as if our favorite SEAL will be trading in his MP5 for a stethoscope! Good luck to you sir and to '95 as you leave us. Fair winds and pleasant seas.

DIRTY THIRTY: The Way We Were 95 will grace the fleet with perfect shiny hair. We marched, we fried, we were in charge, and Frank drank lots of beer. 96 will travel far. They're voyagers already. Three exchange mids kicked cadet butt, And some watched lots of telly. 98, you're leaving 30. New people you will meet. I'll remember you in uniform, drunk on Bourbon Street. 98, I have to say, I wish you best of luck. I know you'll rise to awesome feats, but guys, as plebes, you sucked! Thirty-Fifth Company

The Academic year '94-'95 has been a great one for the midshipmen of the 35th company. With the arrival of a new company offficer, LT Ed Olshaw, the company's motivation took them to the top of the Brigade in spirit. Such displays of motivation were seen as the midshipmen shaved their heads in order to write "BEAT ARMY" on their scalps for the game.

The members of 35 enjoyed many athletic successes, ranging from collegiate championships to winning records in women's basketball, weightlifting, crew, swimming, and boxing.

In a company where so many things have been shared, the unity among the classes was overwhelmingly powerful, especially with the company picnic, with nearly everyone in attendance. With the famed disco and techno splashdowns on deck 8-2, 35's spirit attracted others throughout the Brigade.

All in all, this past year has been a great one for 35th company. We have grown together into one family, still keeping in touch with graduates who left us behind.

Thirty-Sixth Company

36th Company led the way in the Sixth Battalion. Each class contributed to this company with the nicest wardroom in their own way. 95 could always be heard debating the best way to change an oil valve or would Matt Kawas graduate number one. 96 was the best trade 36 ever made. They led the way in developing 98 and are ready to assume the leadership of 36. 97 always wondered when the next Star Trek would come on but led the way in daily development of fourth class. 98 just did what they were told and managed to produce two 4.0 students. We wish all of 36 the best of luck and hope all your dreams come true. Thanks for the memories for we are free at last, free at last, free at last.

The Class of '95

Carol Pagdawan Argao
Brea,CA
Surface Warfare
Baby sister of the company; quiet, neat, (too) romantic. "I'll be back!" "Where's Carol?" "Tex, get out." I love you M/B/T/P/D! Car? "It'll be dark." Perfect running partner. "What's another word for however?" "Wait, I can't see." "Can we have our shower handle?" "You go to a well for your water?" -LEA Count of miles together? '88 Alaska, HtchrPss; Dan, gay?, Hawaii...Rick come quick! So much; your memory sucks. "Wouldn't it be funny if you went to the same place?" You're my best friend. Good/bad times; 7 years, still together. Take care, I'll miss you! -EAA

Laurie Atherholt
Fulton,MD

Leatherholt/Taz came with big dreams. She sometimes got her way, sometimes had to settle with a dysfunctional world. Met a tall, funny man. "You should run. You shouldn't do that!" They're still at it. Is the Song of Solomon considered Ecclesiastes? Don't worry, it'll be dark. Donut...Ouch! Raisins=plastic bag girls, (Age x 2)-4=desperate pervert, little man and his crabby girlfriend, mngr of thankless team, Sunday school..."I hate getting up early!" Study, study, fail, camping...how romantic?!, trucker's motel with bedside mirror. Army/Navy NYC, PARIS!, campground trash lady, I love you JB/MD/WH/JH! -CPA

Alex Leon Aubin
St. Thomas, USVI
Medical Corps
Alpha codes on everything (even Dave's stuff.) Protecting Mr. Milk, 959595. "CMOD confiscates unsecured bayonets (upperclass weren't pleased.)" Alex goes to Alabama. Adopted by the Haynes family. Checking for calves (101 degrees in there!) Chicken pox for Christmas. Treacherous bus ride to Bama. Duck Creek camping. Sheila's visit. Haynes' meet Aubins' in USVI. "My aunt is nineteen." Always sending up a chit to leave early and return late. Nose job for Thanksgiving. Spring Break at Rich's House. Lorraine's dating service. Fellow SERE graduate. AIRBORNE. Exalted Regimental Admin Officer (Chit Master.) Spring Break '95 = Dr. Aubin translates Creole in Gitmo. -JH

Marc's Hell: a world without mirrors. Came a Friday-night fighter, left as a Dawg. Three Stripes, how? "Lim, you can't do this to me!!!" Iris, Heather, Christine, Marci, Leslie, Lilly, Heidi-1, Heidi-2, the list goes on...Dined with Tymeschenko lately? "Pat, stop being that way!!" "Is that an honor offense, dude?" Trim those nose hairs, Baca...Blown away at 723..."She's not that fat!" Good to have around when there's a "grenade" on the ground...You eat 'till you're sleepy, sleep 'till you're hungry. Dude, I'm not fat...I'm looking good! Good food on subs, huh?

Lee Erik Brown
Dallas, TX
Marine Corps Ground

Lee Brown: moralist, philanthropist, don Juan, English major. During our four years by the Bay this Texas Longhorn has given us plenty to remember: experimenting with emergency truck ramps, finding unique ways to deal with company officers (golf clubs...), John Deere shirts, bunnies with Royal Marines - "Can't find my way home." His rambunctious spirit added energy to our otherwise dreary existence. A pretty good guy in spite of his major, Lee is always a true classmate and friend. The Marine Corps will have a first rate officer on its hands come May. "Mind if I join you, ladies?" -- "YES!" -NNP

Coop hails from the clamtown, Long Island, NY...where American Express is free money! Whether it be hanging off the 'Gunks or Seneca, or skiing(?) down Paliviccini, his tendency to flail always made it interesting. 4th Company Honorary Member, Castanza look alike, Irish drunkard...from diving to crew to sailing to climbing, Coops wanton-ed with random intensity. Smoked appleseed in the stone hut as well as with a cucumber out West - (watch out for the turtleneck police). Always liked to sport the John Travolta, always could find a cab (or train) ride home. The end of the road, 34 pitches on El Cap and then freedom, Best of luck from the Nati-Bo Boys.

Pete Townshend once said, "I won't get to get what I'm after 'till the day I die." Chan once said, "I like to pick my boogers." With grit and guilt, Chan survived his own instincts to become the most accomplished weisher in Naval Academy history. Easily the grumpiest sleeper in recorded time, Chan nonetheless gave us four years of meaningful insight into the odd effects of Maine water on the human condition. He taught us very little about women, and even less about meeting them, but what he did give was an appreciation for the blues and for what friendship is all about. O rare Chandler Comerford; you'll be alright brother...

Never fully adjusted to life with Yankees or Girl Scouts, he's not afraid to go cheesy, or employ flexible standards. Whether helping his roomie out of the rack, hairbrushing, or 'diller hunting lessons, he's always willing to help a classmate. Soured on the Corps(except for his silky blankie), Trixie almost persuaded him to fly. A brilliant navigator(This should be Newport), and innovative lyricist, he's never afraid to ask for a sandwich.- CDeez? Man, please! LAMPS. Cheese Mancinetti.- A connoisseur of fine wine, women and song, he's loyal to the end.(Which is one day closer.)

"Sir, is second set going to be as chill as you guys?" From that point on there was no question where Dirt's priorities were. Darth was always one step ahead of bed checks and fighting off the "temptations" cruising Mother B. He moved on from those with questionable preferences and psychotic dopers to the lady he's been looking for all along. Your diving skills impressed us, while your nautical skills impressed even the Postal Service (not to mention honeys from France to Princeton). J.S. Gadzik, the only midshipmen to voluntarily go from a 4.0 in Systems to a 3.5 in History. He just couldn't "see himself as a technical major." The first two years were quiet on 4-4 and we almost lost him but "Gassy" soon found his calling as a "Kicky Boy." Life was good after that. With an awesome new roommate who gave him a new perspective on life, "Gadfly" found Nikki, both of them, and the effects of alcohol, especially on aim. Chris came to us from the record books of Farmington N.M. with flight school on his mind. Having Vogt as his pal for his first two years hampered his social life so it took the last two to catch up. This took only one night at the Red Eye getting comped by the FBI. A two year drought in the Keys could have been avoided but Billy got in the way. San Diego and Sister Golden Hair, unplugged on the sea wall, acoustic nights, Sam Adams and being my chauffeur. Thanks. Good luck in Florida and beware of LIZARD MAN. SMQ

Jen came to us from the cheese state. Her water obsession brought her to USNA and Lejeune. She spent 4/C year at her sponsors. 3/C year brought her a new home, new friends and a new roommate-hey, is she your twin sister? 2/C year she dreamt of the tropics and fish and was blessed with a star and stripes. 1/C year was by far the most revolutionary-new car, new attitude, best friends, actually spending money, letting her hair down, actually enjoying life, and our favorite company wardroom rep. Jen was never far from Mickey Mouse, mac&cheese, jelly beans, the hallmark store, Normy or our hearts. We learned from you, we love you, and will miss you. ERS, AEH, KMJ

Katie traveled all of 45 minuets to come to a navy she knew nothing about. She coped with her stress the best way she knew how; with an inordinate amount of smacking and sweating. Her exasperation with her plebe roommate, OSM, was relieved by a questionable relationship with her 3/C. Her roommate problems were solved with the arrival of JRH. She soon evolved into a geek and a potential wife. Despite her flaws, we have found Katie to be one of the kindest, most generous people we have known. She is a true friend, and we wish her well. Gregory "I'm already pinching" Pritchard. This swashbuckler made his earliest impression upon the laundry bars on 8-2, bringing about the biggest changes any of us made at the Academy. Stretch always managed to have a good time, that is, until some of the larger employees thought he might be better off outside. But who could blame him because "he loves the taste." Young Theo entered the Naval Academy a Jesuit trained alter-boy; he leaves us an easy-riding legend. A late bloomer, Ted hit puberty at the age of 20, gaining enough muscle to "push people around." New experiences abounded, both alone and with friends. The High-Minded Man was everybody's savior (especially if you were the underdog) and every Jersey girl's dream. No matter what path Ted travels down, he will no doubt be a success, though chances are he won't get any credit for it. And yes ladies, he's "really as nice as he seems."

Spud. This ladies' man came to the Academy to fulfill his lifelong dream of joining the Corps. Since then, to the amusement of all, the soul of tact has made it a point of pride to offend, insult and even injure anyone, even people he liked. Spud's career at the Academy was highlighted by an appearance on the cover of the "Trident". As a firstie, Spencer found religion, had a brief romp in the "Stabbin' Cabin" and was born again. It's a reality of life that men are competitive and the most competitive games draw the most competitive men...
I've never known a man worth his salt in the long run that didn't appreciate the grind, the discipline. There is something in good men that really yearns for the discipline and the harsh reality of head-to-head combat...
I firmly believe that any man's finest hour- his greatest fulfillment to all he holds dear- is that moment when he has worked his heart out in a good cause and lies exhausted on the field of battle- victorious. -Vince Lombardi

Straight out of the Compton of Connecticut: North Grosvenordale. This young Pompfret alum came to the Academy a gifted individual. A former "Faces in the Crowd" runner traded his running shoes for a lax stick and a set of whiteworks. Kap redefined style with his ability to wear turf shoes with any outfit. The unfortunate exit of Pritchard left him the best looking guy in the school. He always seemed to have a girlfriend, and is even following one into the USMC. They all seemed the same, extremely intelligent. A triple crown winner who will always be a great Warrior and Friend!! BUBBA, NAVE and GARRETT

Hailing from the great arctic freeze. This Alaskan cowboy was known simply as Eskimo. He entered the Academy a JROTC locked-on warrior, handling his piece with the best of them. Unfortunately, this did not last. Starting with his flirtation with Kodiak and Skoal, by senior year he was never without his guitar and dip. Playing the "Midn X" Blues until early morning. He seemed to have an attachment to his roommates' stuff; be it food, cover, cookies, dip, or even the back of the jeep. His love for female B-Ball players earned him much shame. A great warrior and fine cockpit player. – G.S.E., Bubba, Kap

Youngster year, he had even a better time at watch inspections... Glenn settled down a little second class year, and that summer shattered any hopes of ever joining the corps (fireside deflater). Unable to declare for the NFL draft, Glenn decided on Pensacola, Heidi and Navy air.

Being a navy brat and after having attended Prep School for a year, military life wasn't all that strange for this native of Poway, CA. The privilege of being in the same squad with his 'favorite' second class both semesters made plebe year a bit challenging for him. Played rugby for his first two years but then resorted to more 'convenient' pastimes. During 2/C year when some unfamiliar clamor woke me up one night, I found out that he was learning to play the guitar. He plays really well now (honest!). Good luck to this country-loving cowboy at Pensacola and eventually NASA. NOMY

Well Dave, it's been real, it's been fun, but it sure as hell hasn't been real fun. Plebe rate champion. EE major soon to become physics major. Youngster year with deluded ambitions and breeding cynicism. Sam Adams, Guinness, Pete's Wicked Ale, and all those other beers you can't see through. B & H, Harley's, Lucky Strikes, Chesterfields, and of course... learning how to handroll. Pat Metheny, Billy Joel, Yanni, the Big Blue, Legends, the "Mind's I", and the nobility of the warrior spirit have been but a few sources of inspiration. Here's to motorcycles and a successful career in Naval Aviation... you deserve both. EIC

Oh gentle woo, of trou so taut. The warno queen of N.O., J.S., W.B., and P-cola came through with THE LUMINA. This rubbernecker frequently asked, "How big is a Bancroft shower?" "The Bull" ran hard, ran fast, ran often - and partied that way! Nance, hate to tell you this, but despite your blonde afro wig, blue sequin shorts, and window antics, you are not MADONNA! Nomy (like, you know me) came to USNA from Pakistan, and spread his culture to the natives. (In his country, Chapstick is called "glue"). He never had any trouble with the ladies (he sings like a nightingale, and plays guitar better than The Edge). He managed to save the "babysitter" from death three times! I thought you said English wasn't your first language...We'll never forget his poetic debut ("Platoons are many in the regiment..."), curly shoes, mess night at The Cove, the inevitable camera, palm reading, dancing for food with Peter, or the aroma of Pakistani cuisine in the Hall? If something's a little wierd, Pete's probably done it, from his spontaneous overnight trip from The Stumps to the Grand Canyon to his ability to baffle people with "magic" tricks that don't even involve sleight-of-hand. His forte's include concocting culinary delights in King Hall, beginning unique relationships with women, and keeping his room in a shambles without getting caught. After all, it's easier to pump up a tire hundreds of times than to fix it. That's Peter. He has remained true to his homemade "You can't change me" T-shirt and this place will never be the same.

Willy came to us in one piece. Unfortunately, throughout his four years he managed to break both wrists, smash a toe, bust a tooth, sprain an ankle, break his nose, and dislocate an elbow. Girls? At Hood, he kept a friendly 'ace' up his sleeve. While flying, the 'engine noise' coming from the back seat wasn't so friendly... (NFO?) Mr. MGD (with help from PW) helped him stand 30 days in Smoke. His leadership ability during 'Operation Poor Judgement' made him a shoe-in for company commander. Willy also made himself a 'human bulletin board' on occasion... To say the least, the past four years with Mike have been an experience I won't forget. Roomates for two and a half years, friends for four, we went through a lot. Omar Villegas originally came to us from Lewisville, TX., then went to NAPS, as you can see by his grades, and had to overcome many obstacles in his way. The question that confronts us all is: Will he graduate with his class or will he be one of the unfortunate 95 1/2's??? I guarantee you that not only do we not know the answer to that question but neither does he.

Brian "Zeejalingus" Kurzeja came to us from the "Center of the Universe," an immature, nocturnally active 17 year old. During Plebe year his varied interests and teenage attention span led from D&B to crew - intramurals - rugby - crew - intramurals; producing the infamous Zeejaplans. From his "trained mind" came Zeejamilk, beaching the humpback, choking out Jimmy, getting shot, and riding through fallen trees (something's wrong here!). Zeej is a great friend who is loyal and a constant relief from stress. He now leaves us, a mature, still nocturnally active, 21 year old who is more valuable than any two "warriors." Good Luck Bri! Comes from the Texas Hill Country. Almost went back, sans commission, after some whining Sierra Tangos claimed they weren't getting enough of his Southern Hospitality. True friend, would give you the shirt off his back and his heart if it was humanly possible. Kind of guy who would not leave you when the s@#t hit the fan. Menace after taco-burrito lunch, just ask his roommates. Indeed, some believe a critter crawled up his colon and died. Found his calling in rugby. Graduated with honor from the Old School. Unbreakable spirit, tremendous willpower. Without a doubt, a warrior.

Troll rode the lacrosse train into the Academy only to have it derailed by Computer Calc the first semester. Emerging from the wreckage, he pulled his friends through USNA, while driving out just as many plebes. He tirelessly spent 4 years wallowing in the squalor of one roommate, while containing the antics of the other. From fights with Paul's dirty clothes, hiding in the Supt's bushes, and single-handedly obliterating Davis to being Brian's piss-boy, Troll never missed a beat, except for his head-on collision with Wisner. We tried to dig up dirt on Paul and found nothing, except for his toenail collection. What's the deal, Love Cow? Short stints with track and judo led to a career in intramurals and slight improvements in coordination. His Smithsonian-bound "ZETE" t-shirt sparked an evolution of nicknames: Zete, Zeet, Shazete, Shagass. Paul can do anything...often many things at once, such as: taking notes, tying his shoes, reading, and avoiding pre-turtlehead phenomena. From Virginia brought us a small man with a big ego with the callsign of SLUF. Plebe year saw our hero experiencing a close brush with the UCMJ (what was her name again?), an Ac-board, and a change of majors, all while racking up the kills on Wing Commander. Youngster year brought hair-raising drives home with his roommate to visit "Her". Second class year rolled around with a brief stint on deck 3-1 and the 12th company drill team. Fresh from high school in Harlem, Georgia, Gregg came to us four years ago a recovering Army brat. During his tour of duty here at the Boat School, Gregg was a man of the stage. Smooth with the ladies (or maybe not), but pig-headed, we're not sure which got him in trouble at the frat-house boxing party. A true philosopher, he knows how to sharpen the saw, though lack of knowledge concerning women of the night and psycho Acapulco chics always lead to disaster. #1 military, four stripes, spec war, politically correct, and open-minded...dirty Joe? The jedi mind trick really fooled 'em. Joe kept us laughing (or puking). The "hide the fork", "eat the keys", and "shower pickles" were definitely the best. Joe (and sidekick Sully) destroyed anything and everything. You could also find him climbing elevator shafts, on the roof, or hanging from 7-4 (when he wasn't eating other people's food). To his credit, he never really cared what anybody said about him, including his classmates, but if he had an opinion, you'd know. When Melrose called, nothing else mattered. Homework? What homework? The Chasteen legacy...where to begin? Amanda loved the upperclass more than the rest of us. Her plebe summer "WEEKS" didn't last too long, and Spring Break was bearable; an apple a day...or was it a banana? Amanda made the right choice when she joined a new band. What time was taps, youngster? Who was her best friend, one might ask? Probably Killian or Miller, she couldn't get enough of them!!! The Luck of the Irish, Amanda loved "GREENE", but she got over that phase too. What's the fascination with alleys? We never found out. Well 4 years, 2 could have beens, and thousands of hangovers later, the legacy still lives on....

It didn't take long for us to realize Rick was an overachiever. His only flaws were his "trunks" and falling hard and fast for area women (Tracy, Cannon, and Corn on the Cob). Rick never minded expressing himself while drinking, whether squealing in his backyard or cursing mexican ladies; later, he aptly became known as the "hindrance". Nobody is sure what exactly Rick brought home from Cancùn, fortunately, it died after a few days. Always the smartest among us, Rick rose to be Chief of Staff; we're certain he'll go even farther in life. ATD, DAM.

The pride of Johstown. John hated his all male high school so much he came to USNA. Spent Plebe year at the crew house. Workout program included Gate 1 sprints and 5 lb. carry to 7th Wing. Found his love in another company and hasn't left her since (must be because of the all boy high school). Ambitions of flying... his early grades almost said otherwise. Plagued by evening and morning Russian classes, but once the liberty bell rang John vanished. Always quiet and unassuming, but he could pound down a few like a true Ohio man. But in those four years they could have taught you to speak English, that was after your roommates plebe summer figured out you were not a foreign national. It was never a dull moment, from the first trip to PJ's with the Firsties plebe year, to all the road trips to Frederick and points north after I-ball not to mention the stories from two spring breaks in Panama City, and the TANKER QUALS. Perhaps, Drum & Bugle: MO to Virginia, frat. parties, about being shot in New Orleans, the Harrisburg night life, the Notre Dame tundra, "spontaneous" pep rallies. But Drowsy may be more accurate: sleeping in till 2100 on Saturday?? Burning the midnight oil until 0500, alarm clocks, and Jolt Cola. We mustn't forget what a Dirt-bag you were: "Do you PT in D&B?" LT's platoon sergeant, "What's this Truman thing, anyway?" But perhaps Debonair, after all Miss St. Louis, Miss New Jersey, Miss Teen. No, it's "Dive, Dive, Dive." Scott came to the Academy the paragon of honor, military bearing, and physical fitness due to strong character, previous military experience in Alabama, and super developed gluteus maximus. His rigor and discipline drove him to various noteworthy activities such as the cycling team, John's #1, honor representative, founding the Leadership Library, and company commander. He will leave having enriched his friends (can't forget the Maison du Soleil visit regardless of the detour) and having found the love of his life - Bonnie (what a ring!) Good luck and farewell - Mike Flynn and friends.

From Dear Nitro to a darkside failure. How did you get that name? Was it from the spaghetti sauce, guiness, or the up-side down name tag? Was it from the keggers at the sponsor's, sleeping with the dog, or Brad's haircuts? From denial at U of M, or redemption in Jax? (Tract infection anyone?) The "Truth" came to USNA on a full b-ball scholarship. After initially confusing Plebe Summer for basketball camp, he went on to distinguish himself as a fine, upstanding member of the brigade. L.G. also took on a heavy academic burden by double majoring in Economics and Calculus. Large could always impress me and "Mick the Quick" with his wild weekend rendezvous' with the likes of Donna, Butterscotch, or any number of respectable women. Well roomates the day we arrived and the day we left quite an accomplishment. You came from the sticks of New Era (where's that again?) Your stories of shotguns and camies changed to spearguns and coconuts bras. When's our next sunrise picture? How we stayed roommates I will never know. The bugs and mice tails pinned to the board, Tesla and AC/DC on the radio, the shined shoes, bleached cover, and starched uniforms. So you're going to be an aviator?! Do they make brown shoe polish? You have inspired and aggravated us more than you will ever know. Maybe now you can come out of the closet, although we had you figured out! BNF REH

Huge, plebe year brought sweaty room formals, D&B, Tulane craziness, Dean's list, and the "hook" squad (Pat, Charlie, and Jay). Remember getting chewed out because you knew all your rates? Your "high and tight" youngster year brought weekend diets of chem labs, comics, and Chick & Ruth's. Stars became permanent fixtures, but even so, 2/C cruise began rather suddenly, huh? Plebe detail and company first sergeant followed, preparing for your most pleasant firstie experience: 4-Striper Brigade Paper Boy. Ted, always yearning to be on top, from the mountains of Idaho to new challenges in Baltimore (Baha Beach Club). The "phantom sleeper" knows no bounds. After an evening of consuming fine fluids, no one knew where you might end up, sharing your roomate's rack? That and/or leaving your "mark" in more than one place, from your wall on 6-1 or the P-way on 1-4 (Herndon Party). After battling the dark side for a brief moment, you withdrew your saber and overcame its power. We're quick to forgive, you're still the best. Good luck, fly boy! T.B., B.T.

BJC came to us from Cali and the enlisted ranks. He brought many things with him: knowledge, and the experience to help his classmates party properly. He monitored our behavoir on cruise and at Cornell, where "the Lumberjack" awoke in a courtyard without an exit and earned a spot in Salty. The spirits weren't alway kind to Brother B. He had a few words for Andy: "I met Ronald." Yes Sir-we're sure he's not married, but the wife is around. I believe the pronunciation is. . . Well roomie, it's been fun. "How LONG have we been doing this?!!" Remember the parents weekend formation? Oh, I guess not! Plebe year was filled with Mr. Annoyman, 4 very feminine "Go Navy Sir"s returning from Dahlgren, a room full of tiny bits of fruit, and pink towels. We don't have many memories of Youngster year, I wonder why. Maybe that's why your "infatuation" with youngster year continued through graduation. We've had more tears than most, but it made us stronger. Be proud of the path you have chosen (and the trail of physics notes, Papa John's pizza boxes, and Marines that you left behind).

Free-Dog came to USNA via the hard road...after a very close shave at NAPS, the DAWG showed up ready to excel in the academic arena...from systems to general, Joey felt it best to immerse himself in several different fields...after four long years, Joey made it and that's all that matters. The Free-Dog will always be remembered as spending the majority of his time here in the Club's wardroom...and his "connections" in King Hall were always good for extra rations on tendergroin day! Well, Free-Dog, best of luck in the Fleet, and always remember to live by the saying, "If you can't SWO there, you don't wanna go there!"

An Alabamian and fine Southern gentleman upon arrival at USNA, Chris leaves us as a leader and friend - albeit with a tinge of negative influences from California and Washington - cigars, coffee, and corrupted accent. Chauvenet Forrestal Lectures, small block chevy and EE/Systems lab in Bancroft, salmon and fajitas - great beer! (sorry man), Oregon flat - wake up!, LA/Huntsville in 20 hrs, NYC International Youth Hostel, PRIEST!, Living through 21 - unbelievable!, Jack of all trades, master of none - Systems? Overall best friend and confidant to all. Good luck with Chuck's venerable yellow snapper in Japan! We love you man! -CDR and JTM

Christopher L. Churchill

Church will probably remember his days at USNA as one constant attempt to find good rack. Why does Eric always come in just when you're falling asleep? Remember the guy who runs the trash compactor outside of 5th wing at 0400 (Hey, zabba zima zooma, ha ha ha, sh__)? We'll never know what he said. And it's a good thing Darkness always got helm time, or we'd all be lost. Why do your favorite books have to be so heavy? Maybe we should ask a plebe...oh, if only things were different. Of course, now that you realize that good things can come in small packages, maybe your life will change for the better. -JPJ

After four years together by the Bay, everyone in the company was influenced by this boisterously charismatic Weasel. In fact, "Weazisms" permeated 36: spacers, Forest Grev, Garth Jones, lady, brother, Him, Her, neighbor, new neighbor, zza, lusting, standards, counsel, M.M.MAN and (most importantly) COUSIN-- for "These Were a Few of our Favorite Things". Leadership By Dennis provided an interesting relationship with the 4/c (Orangeade), and eventually produced command of the 150's. . The best "roomy" ever, and I treasure the past 5 years with him. Best of luck to one of the most caring persons I have ever known!

John Hopper, aka 1-eye, came to our brigade from Gerber, California. Right away he made an impact on all of our lives at Thunder Road. No one switched roommates as much as you did, Hop. But who could forget Troy? (1I, you did the right thing). All years were pretty conservative, except for those girls ages 15 to 26. Senior year gave Hop four stripes and it should be noted Brigade spirit was at its best. If it had a moving part, Hop could fix it. John always helped everyone. The Nuclear Community is getting 95's finest. You will be missed and you deserve the best. Stick with fast cars and fast ladies and hopefully we will meet again.WEAZ

JPJ came to Annapolis looking for adventure. What he got was a Chip on his shoulder with a loser squad leader who parked cars for USMC. So, Mr. Turquoise with a J decided to live away from Mother B. Was there a rack in Nimitz? What the hell intramural were you on? Do you ever wear PE Gear? But JJ founded the 2% club and when youngster year brought the B and C to the city by the bay, the rack in Nimitz re-located off the yard. When the ICE PRINCESS left Purdue Univ. for something more adventurous, she found her challenge as an ET in the Navy. She wanted the best the Navy could offer, so someone told her that the Academy was it. Although they told her that she didn't have the intelligence to even get in the front door, her stubbornness, as annoying as it can be, has paid off. This PITA has excelled both academically and as a member of the Women's Lacrosse team. Where ever she goes or whatever she does, I know she will do well (I hope so, since she'll be with me). Congratulations sweets. Love you. RJ

Hailing from a mountain home accessible only in first gear, Chuck forfeited a future with heavy equipment for the adventure of the unknown - via USNA. We first noticed his keen "know how" ability to repair anything when our broken clock's buttons became a heap of wires. Soon he blossomed - passing a CB, quarterpanels, a suspension, and three engines through the room. Despite his fashion sense and stellar conduct record, Chuck ended up excelling - 2% club and subs. Wade, Wada, or is it Tharringto? What do I say about our four years as roomies except I think you slept through half of it! Second class year - Sign o' the Whale, DC, country music, Hood, Riordan's, no restriction? Firstie year - still at Riordan's, W??A - Clarabelle, riverboats - ugh! still no more restriction? All in all, not too shabby: 155 demerits, OOM 890 - Go Navy Air! It's been fun, Wadathan! We made the four and you thought you wouldn't make two! Friends Forever! Peace - KAM

This prior EM3 from Denver Colorado came to the USNA via Naval Reactors and NAPS. Fourth class year: hours of rack in the drill room, a Southern Bell's hospitality, and his initials on all I owned. Third class year: the loss of "HIM." Second Class year: Ted met his future wife, the Contaminator, her mother, HM1, Eastern philosophy, three hour counseling sessions, and a B in performance. 1/C year: Co. Cdr. Naval Flight Officer
Arthur E. Wills hailing from Colorado came to USNA via MMA. This closet Don Juan (de la Yank's casa) kept score on his 5-0 door but never divulged his conquest. As 4/C CC, boards never looked better, well for the time they were up. Boxing and women (Was that a tattoo on her?) both gave Art headaches 3/C year. 2/C year ended the "Wonder Room." Pre Mini-Buds, SERE, Airborne, and Scuba were never a challenge for this Mountain Man. 1/C year saw Art in charge again. No wait, Ac-Officer, no it was Co. Cdr. Along with whiz Quizzes in room 8221. Yank or Spank, this New Jersey native brought Surf, Grunge, and Seattle Sound aspect to our lives. We assumed the entry age was waved with him. This 4/C "bumm looker" aroused our curiosity with what he left in the shower the day the dog died. 3/C year began the continuous shoulder surgeries and the loss of Troy. House of Pain, Dr. Who, Yank in three, match box cars, new roommates, Cathy, 1000 CD's no one knows, great house parties, and owning every room at the pad fulfilled the rest of the time. Yank will always live in all our minds. Hopefully your Spec ops dream comes true. Get pictures of slapping high fives with Art. Best of luck, you will be missed! WEAZ

DEDICATED TO THE MEMORY OF
THOSE WHO DIED AS MIDSHIPMEN
PRIOR TO GRADUATION

This year a plaque was dedicated in Memorial Hall to those Midshipmen who died before completing their four years at the Naval Academy. On the pages to follow, we, the Class of 1995, would like to remember our fallen classmates Gil, Shaun, and Mark. Though they did not graduate with us, they will always be classmates and comrades in our hearts.

Photo Contest

This year, the Lucky Bag staff decided to open its book to photographers throughout the Brigade. In addition to encouraging contributions from midshipmen summer cruises and vacations, we began a photo contest offering prizes for top photographs. Our photo contest was successful in receiving over 50 high-quality photos from midshipmen of all classes, covering a variety of categories from action sports shots to seasonal yard shots. Judging by staff members was heated trying to judge both content and quality. We had a difficult time picking out winners from each of the seven categories, so we picked a handful of honorable mentions. Our favorites were used throughout the book and are cited below. Other winners will be placed on the pages to follow. My hat goes off to all midshipmen contributing, and I hope this contest continues in the future.

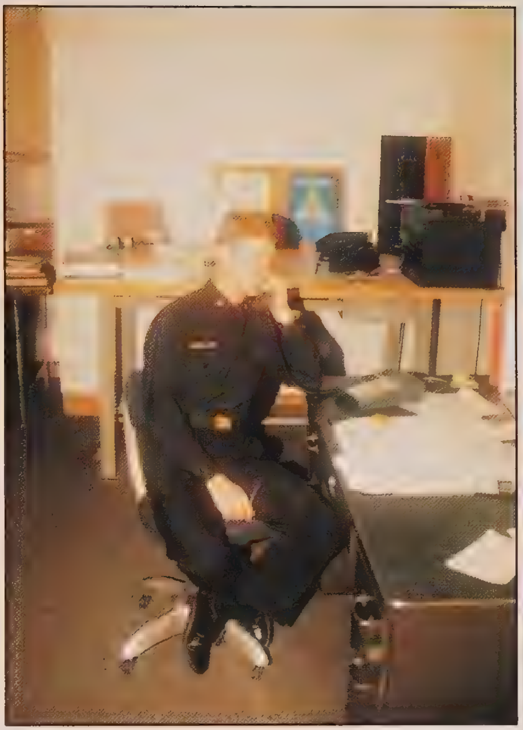
The Lucky Bag

The Lucky Bag staff went through signifcant changes this year. After purchasing new computers, the Assistant Editor Bill Wilhelm sought to overhaul the office with the help of a few staff members. Over a duty weekend, Bill and his crew reorganized the layout of the office, allowing more space for the photo staff and more open space for the work area.

Meanwhile, I as the editor looked to change the status of the organization, and with the help of our Officer Rep CAPT Williams we became a Brigade Student Activity. In addition to spending drill days in the office, this new status allowed us more liberties working with Brigade Stripers and officers to help produce a better annual for the Brigade.

Several club sports were added to our sports section, and ECA's were all given the opportunity to contribute photos and articles about their club's activities. We returned an old Lucky Bag tradition of company write-ups along with company logos, and the first-class informal photos were included to allow for variety of the first-class pictures.



Mac slept everywhere, even on the telephone!

Sharon at Ring Dance. She wasn't the only dark-sider of the group - two of us even went to the Dance together!

OUR CLIENTS ARE FINDING THE ANSWERS THE WORLD'S BEEN WAITING FOR.

We hope and dream. Someday, someone will develop the technology to defend us against irrational despots...to help diverse people and systems communicate with each other...or enable man to explore the mysteries of space.

At Booz·Allen, we work hand-in-hand with that "someone." Our clients are those in government and industry who take on the world's toughest challenges...who take on humanity's most critical work.

Serving them is both our mission and our reward. We help them harness the technology and build the systems to solve complex problems.

We're proud to be part of such powerful synergy. And we're pleased to report to those who watch and wait. ◆ Someone is coming up with a way. Someday is closer than you think.

NAVY FEDERAL CREDIT UNION
EQUAL HOUSING LENDER

Federally insured by the National Credit Union Administration

Once you join Navy Federal, you may remain a member for life – even when you retire, leave the service, or move to career assignments outside our field of membership. So be sure to encourage your coworkers and friends to join as soon as they're eligible. By law, credit unions are not allowed to serve the general public. Navy Federal Credit Union is permitted to serve Navy and Marine Corps officers (active and retired); retired Navy and Marine Corps enlisted personnel; and members of their families. Navy and Marine Corps civilian, enlisted, or reserve personnel MAY be eligible for membership, depending on location; those deployed or stationed outside the U.S., its territories, or possessions are usually eligible for membership. Federal regulations do not permit NFCU to establish membership for non-transient active enlisted, inactive reserve, or civil service personnel in Hawaii. For more information, write NFCU, PO Box 3000, Merrifield VA 22119-3000. Once a member, always a member.

Colophon

The 1995 Lucky Bag was printed in offset lithography by Herff Jones Yearbooks in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. The trim size of the Lucky Bag is 9 x 12, and it contains 744 pages and has a press run of 4800 copies. The Herff Jones representative is Michael Harris.
Cover: Cover design was drawn to specifications of the Editor by Ryan Stouch of Herff Jones. The cover material is Vibratex Navy 1067. Rich Gold 15 and Gold foil F2 are applied to Vibratex cover material. A gold metally with a Navy overtone rub is applied to front lid and a blind embossed die cut to back lid. A Mission grain is applied to portions of the cover.
Endsheet: White VCO1 with Colonial Blue 286 spot color.
Photographs: Midshipmen portraits were taken by Yearbook Associates of Miller Falls Massachusetts. Midshipmen contributed all photographs with help from Yearbook Associates and NAAA.
Advertisements: All advertisements were obtained by Douglas Shreve

The Last Word

My mother always told me to thank everyone who went out of their way to help me in my endeavors. To give everyone their deserved thanks for the work they gave toward this book and my life at the Academy would take several pages. I must instead be brief, and so the thank you's that follow are not inclusive, but I am very thankful of all the people who have helped me along the way.

My first thanks go to Jon Frey, who was the first roommate I had here, and who probably thought I was a hopeless cause, though he never ceased to help me out over plebe summer. My other roommates, Charles, Lance, Carl, and especially Scott and Matt, all had to put up with my bad habits and Lucky Bag chaos. I managed to talk Scott into staying in Annapolis over the summer and help me finish the book, for which I am forever grateful.

Of course I must thank past Lucky Bag editors who helped get this far. After vacuuming the office my first two staff meetings my youngster year, Mike saw my potential and put me on track to be editor two years later. Katie, I know you didn't have much choice between '95ers to pick your successor, but your guidance both during the year and over the summer helped immensely, and for that I am thankful.

Without a supportive staff an editor is as good as a ship without a crew. Bill, I couldn't have asked for a better right-hand man. Even though I didn't flood your desk with tasks, you always did everything I asked. I knew I picked the right person to succeed me, and I'm sure the '96 book will be great. Kathy, I hardly ever saw you in the office, but you did everything beautifully and on time. Adam, you took the photo staff mid-year but took care of your staff and mine. Dawn, as my assistant in the '94 book, you took over the First-Class section well - best of luck as a striper. Chris, the utility staffer, index editor and photographer, best of luck at USAFA and with the '97 Lucky Bag. And of course Mac, thanks for all your help while you could. We will all miss you, wherever you go.

Heart-felt thanks go out to everyone at Herff Jones, especially Mike, Coy, Walt, Joe, and Michelle. Mike, you put up with me for two years, but your sense of humor and penchant for golf made you a good friend as well as a great advisor. A special thanks to Joyce and Leo whose hospitality was unmatched by anyone I've ever met. Joyce's cooking and Leo's homemade bread and stories about the Corps gave me an excuse to come up to Gettysburg over the past couple years. I'll be sure to visit again.

People all over the yard have helped contribute to the book, from company officers to athletic coaches and captains. Phil, your photographs are truly second to none. Thanks to CAPT Williams for your support and guidance over the past year. I hope your pre-comm command doesn't give you as many hassles as the job of O-Rep. Thanks to YBA, especially George, Karen, and Potts, without whom we'd be helpless in getting our photographs just right. And a special thanks to Pat and Laurie, who took care of me and the Lucky Bag, and who kept me sane over the summer.

Last, the most thanks to my mom. An Army Brat who had dreams of another West Point Cadet in the family, my mother soon became the biggest Navy fan, even cheering for Navy over Army last year. Her tailgaters were second to none - just ask Greg and the rest of 27. Whenever I came home for the weekend there was always dinner at night and breakfast first thing in the morning. Mom, I cannot thank you enough for your love and care over the past four years and the 18 years before.

Finally, I'd like to dedicate this book to my father, who died during my plebe year. His last wish was to see me get into the Academy, and I did what I could to succeed here for him.
